The Library of Congress (Library) announces the availability of $950,000 to support the development of online interactive[s] and mobile apps for classroom use on Congress and civic participation.

Deadline for Submission of Application for Funding: April 30, 2018.

Authority: The “Library of Congress Digital Collections and Educational Curricula Act of 2005” (2 U.S.C. § 184) authorized the Librarian of Congress to administer a program to teach educators and librarians how to incorporate the digital collections of the Library of Congress into educational curricula. This program is called “The Library of Congress Teaching with Primary Sources Program” (TPS). The Librarian was further authorized to establish an educational consortium to support the program and to make funds available to consortium members, educational institutions and libraries. In Pub.L. 115-56, the Continuing Appropriations Act, 2018, Division D, section101, Congress allocated funds to the TPS program. Under 2 U.S.C. § 136, the Librarian is authorized to enter into agreements to accomplish the mission of the Library. In fiscal years 2015, 2016 and 2017, Congress allocated funds to the TPS program to support online interactives and apps for educational purposes on Congress and civic participation. The TPS program awarded grants to five organizations in 2016 and 2017, and will identify additional grantees in fiscal year 2018.

In Pub.L. 115-56, the Continuing Appropriations Act, 2018, Division D, section101, Congress allocated funds to the TPS program. Under 2 U.S.C. § 136, the Librarian is authorized to enter into agreements to accomplish the mission of the Library.

Library of Congress: The Library of Congress is the nation’s oldest federal cultural institution and serves as the research arm of Congress. It is also the largest library in the world, with millions of books, recordings, photographs, maps and manuscripts. The Library’s mission is to make its resources available and useful to the Congress and the American people and to sustain and preserve a universal collection of knowledge and creativity for future generations.

PLEASE NOTE: The Library of Congress is not an Executive agency. This Notice of Funding Availability will not be posted on the Grants.gov site. Inclusion of the Notice of Funding Availability in the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance is not required.
Library of Congress Teaching with Primary Sources Program: Background

The Teaching with Primary Sources program is the Library’s premier educational outreach program for teachers. The goal of the program is to provide professional development for teachers focused on enhancing their ability to embed digitized primary sources from the Library into inquiry-based instruction that builds student literacy, critical thinking skills and content knowledge.

Since the 1990s, the Library of Congress has reached thousands of teachers through offerings at the Library, on its website, www.loc.gov/teachers, and onsite in communities nationwide. The Teaching with Primary Sources program has four main goals:

1. Provide online and in-person primary source-based professional development programs nationwide.
2. Increase the ability of educators to design student-centered primary source-based learning experiences that use effective instructional practices.
3. Implement standards-based learning experiences that improve student ability to critically examine primary sources.
4. Build patronage of the Library’s digitized resources, which expands the community of educators dedicated to the improvement of education through the use of primary sources.

Educational Consortium

An educational consortium made up of institutional partners such as universities, school districts and educational foundations helps the Library disseminate the TPS program. Using the TPS curriculum framework as a guide, Consortium members develop and implement professional development and create curricular resources focused on effective instructional use of the Library’s digitized primary sources. Professional development is ongoing and progressive to allow for K-12 educators to improve their ability to:

- Design primary source-based inquiry oriented learning experiences;
- Implement these experiences in the classroom;
- Evaluate these experiences and learning outcomes; and
- Share their expertise with educators nationwide.

For more information, please visit the TPS Web site at: http://www.loc.gov/teachers/tps/

Online Interactive[s] and Apps for Classroom Use on Congress and Civic Participation

For nearly a decade, the TPS program has provided extensive professional development opportunities for educators and enabled the development and dissemination of teaching materials focused on using the Library’s digitized primary sources. These funds to TPS will expand the program and the consortium’s efforts through the development of online interactive [s] and apps for classroom use on Congress and civic participation.

Whereas civic education is essential to the preservation and improvement of the constitutional government of the United States, the goal of this effort is to enable organizations to combine new technologies with valuable civics content to enhance student learning. The resulting online interactive [s] and apps will provide young people with engaging and meaningful opportunities to learn.

The Library of Congress seeks to identify one or more institutions to develop online interactive [s] and apps for classroom use on the subjects of Congress and civic participation. Identified institutions will be required to become members of the TPS Educational Consortium, and utilize and incorporate to the extent practicable, not only the Library’s online primary sources, but also the many other resources available online from the Library of Congress.
Grant Requirements

- Develop, successfully test with the target audience (K-12 students and teachers), and deliver online interactive [s] and mobile apps for classroom use on Congress and civic participation as outlined in an approved project plan.
- Ensure that the apps and online interactive [s] primarily use and incorporate freely available, rights-free primary sources from the Library’s online collections, as well as the many other freely available online resources from the Library of Congress (including, but not limited to essays, publications, bibliographies, subject guides, teacher materials, and resources from www.Congress.gov, chroniclingamerica.loc.gov, and www.wdl.org). Non-Library materials should be freely available rights-free resources from other government or non-profit cultural institutions.
- Ensure that the content focuses on supporting students’ analysis of primary sources, consistent with practices described in Library of Congress teacher resources.
- Ensure that the content presented in the apps and online interactives is accurate, and judged by the target audiences to be high quality.
- Participate in the TPS Educational Consortium by sharing ideas, methods and information to enhance the development and dissemination of the national program.
- Obtain all necessary permissions, releases and/or other clearances that must be acquired for use of any content to be included by grantee in grantee’s online interactive [s] and mobile apps, and any other projects to be developed under this grant. Such permissions, releases and/or other clearances may pertain to, but are not limited to, copyright, right of publicity, right of privacy, defamation, or any other right whatsoever.
- Enter into an agreement with the Library and openly license to the public any new copyrightable materials created in whole, or in part, with these grant funds, and openly license to the public any copyrightable modifications made to pre-existing content using these grant funds. The license must be worldwide, non-exclusive, royalty-free, perpetual, and irrevocable, and must grant the public permission to access, reproduce, publicly perform, publicly display, adapt, distribute, and otherwise use, for any purposes, copyrightable intellectual property created with such funds, provided that the licensee gives attribution to the designated authors of the intellectual property.
- All computer software source code developed or created with these grant funds must be openly licensed under an intellectual property license that allows the public to freely use and build upon source code created or developed pursuant to this grant of funds.
- Grantee shall also provide the Library a royalty-free, nonexclusive and irrevocable right to reproduce, publish, or otherwise use all projects created under this grant for Federal purposes, and to authorize others to do so.
- Grantee shall agree, in accordance with the Library’s access and use terms, to provide the Library a perpetual, royalty-free, worldwide license to use all intellectual property produced under the agreement for the Library’s purposes, which includes, but is not limited to, publication or online display, incorporation of the intellectual property into materials developed by TPS or Library derivatives of such property, or other similar purposes related to the Library’s mission and programs.
- Participate in outreach activities and develop promotional materials to alert educators to the development of, and ultimately to the availability of, the online interactive [s] and mobile apps.
- Design and deliver professional development that embeds use of the online interactive [s] and mobile apps.
- Attend at least two TPS Educational Consortium meetings held annually at the Library (or elsewhere), as well as scheduled Library web conferences.
- Participate in at least one joint presentation with the Library at a major educational conference.
• Maintain the product and all its features in full working order and free public access for at least two years after launch.
• Support Library of Congress staff and Consortium members in their understanding of civics education and the use of products developed under the grant.
• Participate in evaluation exercises undertaken by the Teaching with Primary Sources Educational Consortium.

Deliverables

Recipients of an award shall deliver to the Library:

• A product development plan for the Library’s approval, including ongoing status updates and timely, regular review of product design and content by Library staff;
• Fully functioning online interactive [s] or cross-platform mobile apps as described in the project plan (that utilize the latest versions of the Android and iOS platforms, and work on both phones and tablets);
• Support of the product and all its features in full working order and free public access for at least two years after launch.
• At least two in-process demonstrations for Library staff and other stakeholders;
• At least two teacher professional development modules or other teacher materials that incorporate use of the online interactive [s] and mobile apps;

• Post-launch delivery to the Library of all code, content, documentation, and other assets developed for the project.

The recipient grants to the Library a perpetual, irrevocable worldwide and unrestricted license to the project content in any format or successor technology.

Grant Amount

The total amount of funding available is $950,000. There is no minimum award amount. Individual funding levels will depend on the content and quality of applications, the number of applications received, and availability of funding. Cost sharing or matching is not required. Applicants may adopt a cost sharing or matching approach, but such arrangements will not impact the review criteria or evaluation of an application.

The Library of Congress, National and International Outreach, Educational Outreach Division plans a single award cycle, potentially resulting in multiple awards. The Library reserves the right to make a single award, to fund parts of applications, or to not make any awards at all. Issuance of this Notice of Funding Availability does not constitute an award commitment on the part of the U.S. Government, nor does it commit the U.S. Government to pay for any costs incurred in the preparation and submission of any application.

Grant Period

The grants will support activities for 24 months, from October 2018 through September 2020.

Eligible Applicants

Eligible applicants include: public or private organizations, both not-for profit and for-profit organizations, including institutions of higher education, colleges, universities, cultural institutions, other educational organizations, and collaborative partnerships (such as an organization with content expertise paired with an organization possessing technological expertise); States; public or private agencies, including for-profit agencies; and Indian tribes and tribal organizations. Although the grantee’s work products will differ from those of the existing TPS Consortium members, it is expected that the grantees will become active members of the Consortium. An applicant may be disqualified if the Applicant or any principal or employee has been subject to any legal proceeding involving fraud, criminal activity or has been subject to any Federal or state citation for a criminal activity. If so, an explanation must be provided.

System for Award Management (SAM). Each applicant must: (i) be registered in SAM before submitting its application; (ii) provide a valid unique entity identifier in its application; and (iii) continue to maintain an active SAM registration with current information at all times during which it has an active Federal award or an application or plan under consideration by a Federal awarding agency. The Library may not make an award to an applicant until the applicant has complied with this requirement and, if an applicant has not fully complied with the requirement by the time the Library is ready to make an award, the Library may determine that the applicant is not qualified to receive an award and use that determination as a basis for making an award to another applicant.
