GENERAL INFORMATION

The Army has relied upon lawyers since July 1775 when the Second Continental Congress selected Colonel William Tudor of Boston, a 25-year-old Harvard graduate, as the first Judge Advocate of the Army. From the Revolutionary War until World War I, the relatively small quotas of judge advocates required by the Army were filled with officers equipped for their duties with varying degrees of experience and training. Judge advocates were sometimes appointed directly from civilian life, but were usually detailed from other branches of the Army.

Despite a long record of service by Army judge advocates, not until the beginning of World War II were efforts made to provide them specialized training in military law. In February 1942, as the uniformed lawyer's responsibilities increased in volume and complexity, specialized courses and refresher training for active duty judge advocates were begun at the National University Law School in Washington, D.C. The school moved in August 1942 to the University of Michigan Law School in Ann Arbor. By June 1944, over two-thirds of the active duty officers in the Judge Advocate General's Corps (JAGC) were graduates of the school. The school at Ann Arbor, intended as only a temporary one, was deactivated in 1946 during the general demobilization following World War II.

Following the school's deactivation, a study on the administration of military justice demonstrated a requirement for continued formal training of military lawyers. Gone was the time when one could prepare for the practice of law in the Army by mastering a few books. Detailed instruction was needed for new judge advocates and continuing instruction on new developments in military law was required for all judge advocates. The passage of the Uniform Code of Military Justice in 1950 and the beginning of the Korean Conflict further emphasized this need. As a result, another temporary school to train judge advocates was activated at Fort Myer, Virginia, in October 1950. It was decided, however, that a permanent school for Army lawyers must be established.

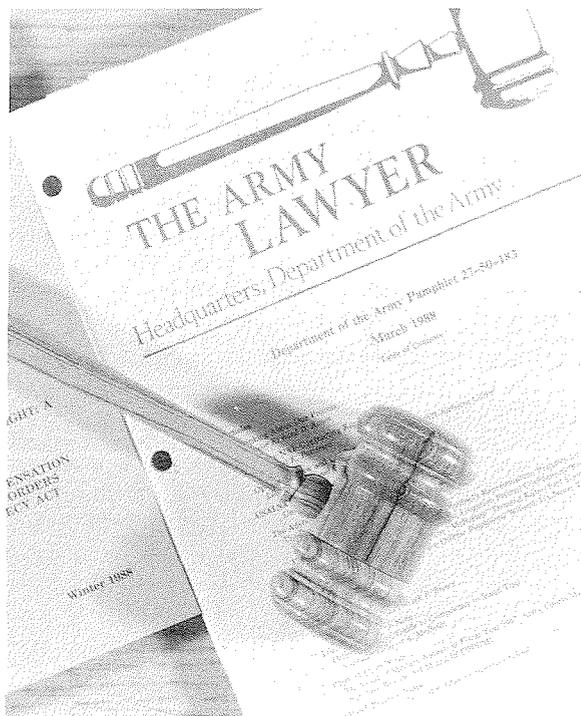

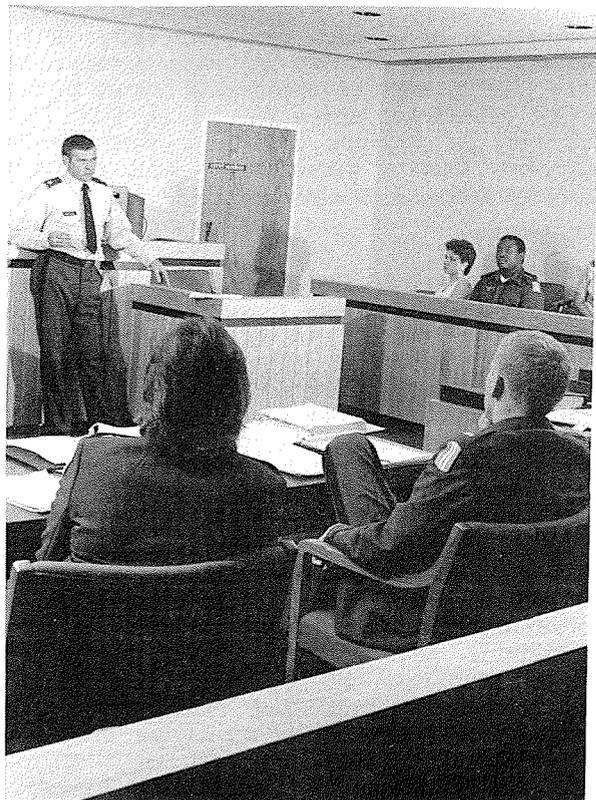

An offer from the University of Virginia was accepted by the Army and, in August 1951, The Judge Advocate General's School (TJAGSA) moved to Charlottesville, Virginia, where it shared existing UVA facilities. As the military community grew in the sixties, so did the needs of the JAG Corps. In 1975, the School moved to its own facility in the North Grounds area of the UVA campus, an area dedicated to graduate education and which currently houses the UVA Law School and the Darden Graduate School of Business as well as TJAGSA. A significant qualitative improvement, the new facility provided classrooms and seminar rooms with seating capacities from 10 to 200, two practice courtrooms, an auditorium, a library, a post exchange, 80 motel-type rooms for individuals attending continuing legal education courses, and private offices for each faculty member.

The Judge Advocate General's School teaches the fundamentals of military law to attorneys newly commissioned as judge advocates and provides graduate legal education for career military officers. Numerous continuing legal education courses and seminars, lasting from three days to three weeks, are given annually. The School also administers an extensive correspondence course continuing legal education program. More than 3,000 attorneys attend resident courses during the year. Correspondence course enrollment exceeds 1,800.

Functions of the School are divided among four departments: Academic; School Support; Developments, Doctrine and Literature; and Guard and Reserve Affairs.

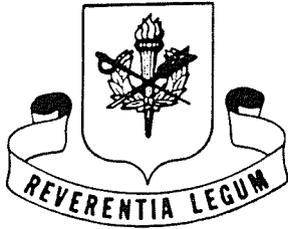

The Academic Department develops and conducts all of the School's resident courses and is responsible for all nonresident instruction including administration of correspondence courses and preparation of training material for judge advocates attending Army reserve schools or serving in Reserve Component units. The department also manages development of legal subject training materials for use Army-wide.

The School Support Department serves as the principal administrative staff, controlling administrative, personnel, logistical, and budget matters. This department is also responsible for conference planning, local claims and legal assistance service, and the TJAGSA Community Club.

The Developments, Doctrine and Literature Department is responsible for the initial development and subsequent reviews of the designs of military legal offices for the Active Army and Reserve Component force. These designs must allow the Judge Advocate General's Corps to provide total legal service support to the combat force. Each design includes number of personnel, grade structure, and equipment. Additionally, the department develops JAGC doctrine and prepares conceptual analysis studies to help ensure quality legal service support for the total Army. The department edits and publishes the JAGC's two key professional publications, the Military Law Review and The Army Lawyer. The Army Law Library Service, within the department, manages the central acquisition of key library materials for 261 Army law libraries worldwide.

The Judge Advocate Guard and Reserve Affairs Department is the principal advisor to The Judge Advocate General on policy matters affecting the appointment, assignment, mobilization, and training of Reserve Component judge advocate officers. The department reviews and makes recommendations on applications for appointments into the JAGC, USAR, and for federal recognition of Army National Guard judge advocates; supervises assignments of Individual Mobilization Augmentees (IMA) and senior USAR judge advocates; provides management advice and assistance to all Reserve Component judge advocates; assists in the development and administration of resident and nonresident training programs; and reviews regulations affecting Reserve Component judge advocates for updating and changes.

COMMANDANT'S REPORT

This past year witnessed one of the most important events in the history of The Judge Advocate General's School.

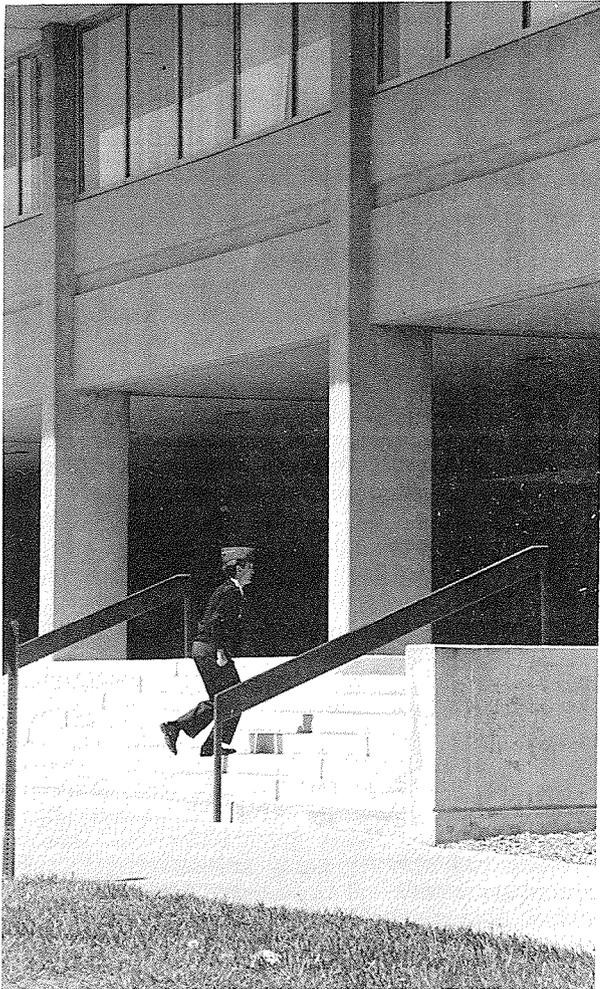

On December 4, 1987, The Judge Advocate General's School became the nation's only government entity statutorily authorized to confer the degree of Master of Laws (LL.M.) in Military Law. The School's degree conferring authority was included in the Defense Authorization Act, signed into law by President Reagan. As stipulated in 10 U.S.C. 4315:

Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Army, the Commandant of The Judge Advocate General's School of the Army may, upon the recommendation of the faculty of such school, confer the degree of Master of Laws (LL.M.) in Military Law upon graduates of the school who have fulfilled the requirements for that degree.

In granting the authority to confer this degree, Congress and the President recognized the demanding scholastic standards of the Graduate Course, which has been called one of the finest graduate law programs in the United States. This legislatively mandated recognition evidences the professionalism of each TJAGSA Graduate Course graduate, and is an event in which all members of the Corps, past and present, may take pride. Beyond this, however, this recognition is also an expression of confidence that the School will continue to excel. We are justifiably proud of this vote of confidence in the School's continued success.

The primary mission of the School is, and always will be, the provision of the highest quality legal instruction to meet the professional development and continuing legal education needs of the Army lawyer, whether active duty or Reserve Component.

The faculty also taught courses in Europe, Korea, and the Pacific Command area to active duty and civilian attorneys. Between October 1987 and May 1988, the School provided continuing legal education to over 2000 Reserve Component judge advocates in 23 regional population centers throughout the United States. Over 1,800 students were enrolled in the correspondence course program and over 1,600 tapes were dubbed by the School and sent to legal officers throughout the world.

The Administrative and Civil Law Division continued to provide instruction to commanders and attorneys in a broad range of legal subjects. Each Graduate Course student received over 200 hours of core instruction, including federal litigation, installation law, claims, military personnel law, civilian

During the past year, The Judge Advocate General's School provided instruction to over 3,000 students in 43 resident courses. The 36th Graduate Course, which consisted of 71 students, including visiting military attorneys from Turkey, Korea, and Nigeria, was in residence from August 1987 through May 1988. Three basic courses were conducted during the past academic year. A total of 166 Army officers and six allied officers graduated from the 113th, 114th and 115th Basic Courses. The continuing legal education courses offered by the School were attended by students from numerous government agencies, several foreign countries, and all of the military services.

The School continued to provide senior officers with legal orientations prior to their assumption of command. Eighteen general officers attended General Officers Legal Orientation Courses and 217 battalion and brigade command designees attended four resident Senior Officers Legal Orientation Courses during the past academic year. Additionally, instructors from the School participated in 12 Pre-Command Courses conducted at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for battalion and brigade command designees.

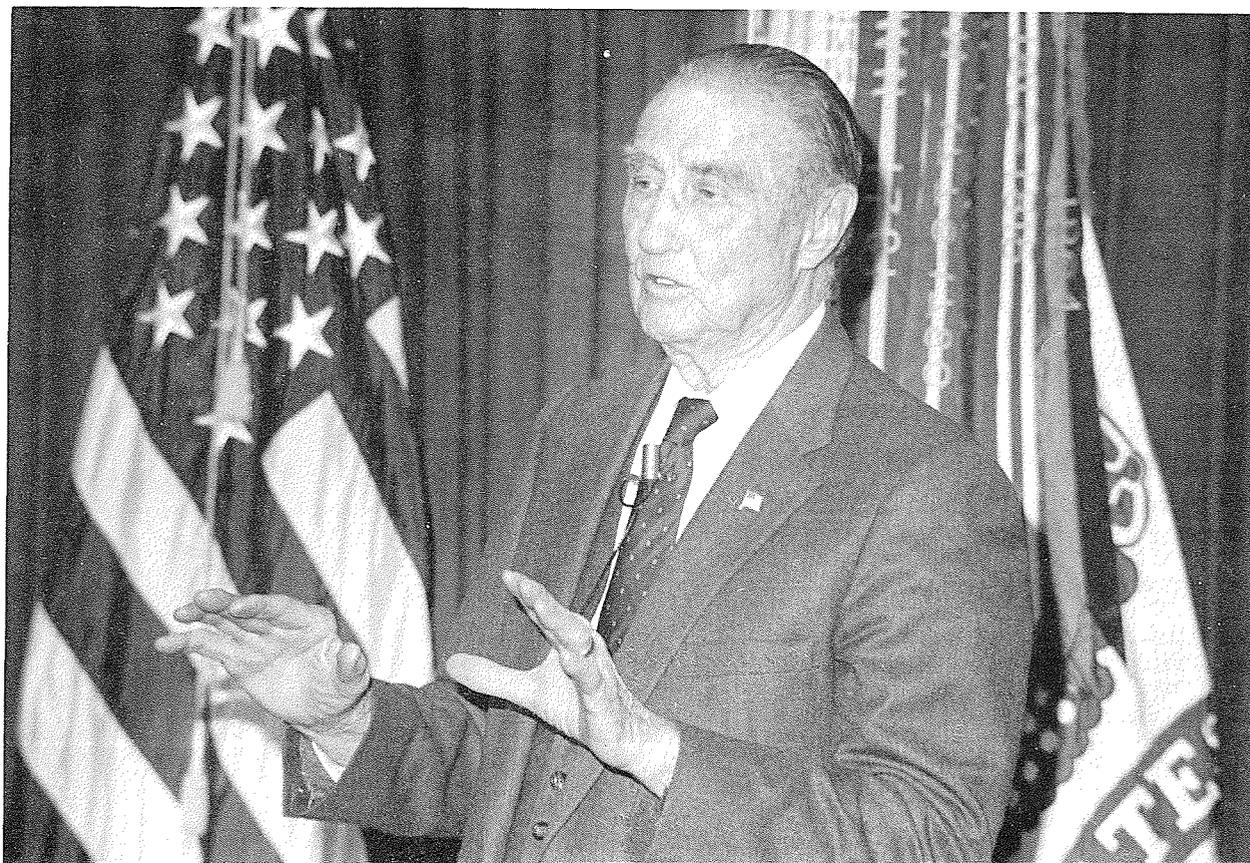

personnel law, labor law, and standards of conduct. The Division also offered 14 electives. Each Basic Course received three weeks of instruction in all administrative and civil law subjects, including practical exercises in interviewing and counseling, will drafting, separation agreements, and administrative separation actions.

In addition to teaching Army Reserve and Army National Guard attorneys on the weekend, Division instructors taught one-week USAREUR Legal Assistance, Tax, and Administrative Law Courses. Instructors also taught each month in the Pre-Command Course at Fort Leavenworth and every other month in the Army Installation Management Course at Fort Lee, Virginia. The Division teamed with the Criminal Law Division to teach a five-week CLE at a number of locations in the Pacific, including the Philippines, Guam, Korea, and Japan. One instructor was also a principal lecturer in tax conferences in both the Pacific and Panama.

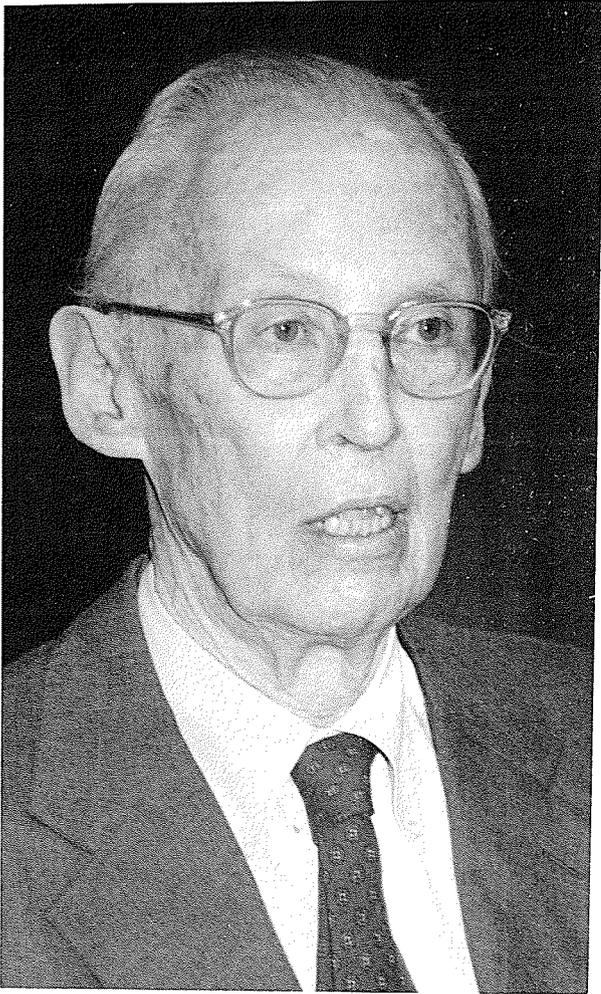

The Legal Assistance Branch, Administrative and Civil Law Division, which taught two TJAGSA CLE courses, continued to provide timely material and advice to 210 legal assistance offices worldwide. Five separate mailings were sent, with more than 35 publications distributed. Included among materials published and distributed by the Branch were the Legal Assistance Guide series, which is an updated and expanded version of the former All States Guides; a Legal Assistance Officer's Federal Income Tax Supplement; and a new publication, The Army Legal Assistance Program Preventive Law Series. The Branch also distributed materials obtained from non-TJAGSA sources.

This was a particularly excellent year for Administrative and Civil Law guest speakers, including Ms. Jane Ley, Office of Government Ethics; Mr. John L. Euler, Torts Branch, Department of Justice; Mr. Dennis M. Devaney, General Counsel, Federal Labor Relations Authority, and former Member, Merit Systems Protection Board; and Mr. Clarence Ditlow, Director, Center for Auto Safety. Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina presented the 12th Charles L. Decker Lecture.

The Criminal Law Division continued to teach newly commissioned judge advocates in the Basic Course and experienced judge advocates attending the Graduate Course. The Basic Course students received five weeks of criminal law instruction, including a demanding clinical training program consisting of 10 trial technique exercises and two moot court presentations. The core curriculum for the Graduate Course was designed to familiarize all students with criminal law subjects during the first two quarters and included eight small group seminars on various areas of evidence and procedure. Instruction in the final two quarters consisted of eight advanced criminal law electives. Two sessions of the Criminal Trial Advocacy Course were offered to a total of 96 trial and defense counsel and the Military Judge Course was offered to selected officers from all Armed Services, including the Reserve Components. The Criminal Law Division presented instruction to more than 170 judge advocates on recent criminal law developments.

In addition to resident instruction, the Division taught criminal law at the monthly Pre-Command Course at Fort Leavenworth; at 17 different reserve off-site locations; and at two separate week-long CLE's in USAREUR. The Division also presented a condensed advocacy course in USAREUR between the week-long CLE's.

The Division continues to update DA pamphlets on Criminal Law subjects. The Jurisdiction and Trial Procedure Pamphlets are being updated and consolidated. A new DA Pamphlet 27-10, Military Justice Handbook for the Trial Counsel and Defense Counsel, will soon be published, as will a new pamphlet on Crimes and Defenses.

Criminal Law instructors regularly contributed articles and short notes for publication in The Army Lawyer and the Military Law Review. Criminal Law instruction was complemented by an exceptional guest speaker program that included Lewis F. Powell, Jr., Retired Associate Justice, United States Supreme

The Contract Law Division gave introductory instruction in government contract law to students in the Basic Classes and comprehensive instruction to the students of the Graduate Course. In addition, the Division sponsored 11 continuing legal education courses. These included the Third Advanced Acquisition Course, one week of instruction in the legal issues involved in the acquisition of major end items; two Fiscal Law courses; one course in the Commercial Activities Program; and four two-week Contract Attorneys Courses. Also, the Division created and presented three new one-week courses: the First Procurement Fraud Advisor's Course; the First Program Managers' Attorneys Course, which focused on the acquisition of major programs and weapons systems; and the First Advanced Installation Contracting Course, which covered the more difficult problems encountered in installation contracting.

The 1988 Government Contract Law Symposium featured lively discussion of legislative changes in the field of government contract law and recent decisions of the courts, boards of contract appeal, and the General Accounting Office. Also featured were seminars in special contract law topics and the delivery of the Fifth Annual Gilbert A. Cuneo Lecture in Contract Law by the Honorable Loren A. Smith, Chief Judge, United States Claims Court. Guest speakers at the Symposium were Major General Harry Karegeannes, Director of Contracting, Department of the Army; Lieutenant General Jerry Max Bunyard, Deputy Commander for Research, Development and Acquisition, U.S. Army Materiel Command; Brigadier General Norman Thorpe, Staff Judge Advocate, U.S. Air Force Logistics Command; and Rear Admiral Daniel W. McKinnon, Deputy Director of the Defense Logistics Agency.

The Division provided instruction in contract law to Reserve Component officers at 10 locations, as well as during the resident Judge Advocate Triennial Training and Phase IV of the Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Course. The Division presented on-site fiscal law and other continuing legal education courses in Germany for U.S. Army Europe.

The International Law Division continued to focus on practical international legal issues that directly impact upon the judge advocate involved in military operations in both peacetime and combat environments overseas. The goal of the Division is to ensure that military lawyers are knowledgeable in all aspects of operational law, a body of law which includes the law of war, and are able to participate effectively as members of the commander's operations team. Lessons learned from Operation Urgent Fury in Grenada, from the British experience in the Falkland Islands, and from training exercises in Latin America, Europe, and the Middle East have been incorporated into the Graduate Course and CLE instruction.

The Division has also initiated instruction which deals with numerous legal issues associated with security assistance. Four Law of War Workshops were taught at the School, emphasizing the operational aspects of the law of war. The Third Judge Advocate and Military Operations Seminar then built upon this law of war instruction by providing multidisciplinary, practical, legal guidance for judge advocates participating in training exercises and combat operations. Due to the importance of and demand for operational law instruction, the Judge Advocate and Military Operations Seminar will be offered twice in academic year 1988-89.

The Judge Advocate General's directive requiring that judge advocates be aware of the terrorist threat continued to be implemented by the Division through the Ninth Legal Aspects of Terrorism Course. This course had students from each of the four armed services, numerous attorneys from other federal agencies, a representative of the Ministry of Defense of the Federal Republic of Germany, and the Judge Advocate General of the Armed Forces of the Netherlands.

In responding to other instructional requirements, the Division sent two instructors to Germany to assist in the presentation of the USAREUR Operational Law Course and provided instruction at the Army War College, the Marshall-Wythe School of Law of the College of William and Mary, The Judge Advocate General's School of the Air Force, and the Military Police School, Fort McClellan. Division instructors also made presentations to the Air Force Worldwide JAG Conference, Army reserve conferences at Albuquerque and San Antonio, and the New York City Bar Association. Additional instruction was provided throughout the year to Army Reserve and National Guard attorneys at weekend off-site training. The Fifth Waldemar A. Solf Lecture was presented by Louis Henkin, Distinguished Professor of Law, Columbia University.

The Developments, Doctrine and Literature Department obtained Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) approval of the draft Tables of Organization and Equipment (TOE) for the U.S. Army Legal Services Command and the USAR Judge Advocate General's Service Organization (JAGSO). The Legal Services Command will be the TOE organization to which defense counsel and military judges who support the combat force will be assigned. The new JAGSO design reflects current Army of Excellence doctrine and mirrors the design of Active Army legal offices. Additionally, the Department is seeking TRADOC and DA approval of an expanded mission for JAGSOs that will provide for mobilization legal support and legal support for the land defense of CONUS. The Department is pursuing, along with the Office of The Judge Advocate General Information Management Office, the acquisition process that will result in computer systems being made available to the combat force to run our Legal Automation Army-wide System (LAAWS). These computer systems will be part of the Army Tactical Combat Computer System--Common Hardware and Software (ATCCS-CHS) family of IBM-compatible computers. The School is awaiting receipt of Electronic Information Delivery Systems (EIDS) for each of the four academic divisions. These interactive video disc systems will be used to enhance the educational process.

The Military Law Review and The Army Lawyer continued to provide quality articles that informed and educated judge advocates in the Active Army and Reserve Component force. Law review articles ranged from Judge Walter T. Cox's discussion of American military justice under the Constitution to Captain Stephen Deardorff's proposal to revamp informed consent procedures in military hospitals. The Army Lawyer published 20 articles written by the School's faculty and provided a monthly summary of the activities of the Constitutional Convention of 1787 as well as other important events associated with the Constitution's Bicentennial. In October 1987, at The Judge Advocate General's Conference, the Alumni Association presented its Professional Writing Award to Lieutenant Colonel William R. Hagan for his article Overlooked Textbooks Jettison Some Durable Military Law Legends, 113 Mil. L. Rev. 163 (1986), tracing the development of military law in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

The Army Law Library Service continued efforts to provide needed materials to over 260 Army law libraries worldwide. Several new libraries now augment the Corps' continuing commitment to provide top-quality legal services everywhere our clients need them. The Department developed a program to celebrate the Bicentennial of the Constitution that resulted in The Judge Advocate General's School being designated as a Defense Bicentennial Community and presented a special Bicentennial leadership award from the Council for Advancement of Citizenship and the Center for Civic Education. Another highlight of this year was the visit by the United States Court of Military Appeals to the School. On 16 November 1987, COMA held a session, complete with oral arguments, in Charlottesville. members from the University of Virginia School of Law and TJAGSA had the opportunity to see how the military appellate system works.

In June 1987, the Judge Advocate Guard and Reserve Affairs Department sponsored resident Judge Advocate Triennial Training in Administrative and Civil Law and Phase IV of the Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Course for 310 Army Reserve and National Guard judge advocates. The 1988 Judge Advocate General's Reserve Training Workshop was held in April for 150 selected Reserve and Active Component officers. The Department sponsored the School's Continuing Legal Education (off-site) program in 23 regional population centers throughout the United States. Between October 1987 and May 1988, the off-site program provided continuing legal education to over 2,000 attendees representing all services and all components. Department initiatives in the past year included broadening the base of Army National Guard participation in TJAGSA resident and nonresident training, successfully integrating newly commissioned USAR judge advocates into Phase I of the Active Component Judge Advocate Officer Basic Course, and participating in recruiting efforts sponsored by the JAGC Professional Recruiting Office which helped increase Reserve Component strength to record levels.

The School Support Department continued to provide total logistical and administrative support for the staff, faculty, and guests. With the increased student load, an expansion of the TJAGSA Community Club became necessary. Consequently, a contract was let in February to enclose the north balcony which will increase the Club size by approximately 20 percent. The larger facility will be completely redecorated and a new bar and grill kitchen will be added. The scheduled completion in the fall of 1988 will enhance the high level of support provided to the School.

In recent years, increases in the missions required of TJAGSA have created a demand for space which exceeds the capabilities of the present facility. On 13 June 1985, groundbreaking was conducted for a 48,500 square foot addition to the existing building. The new addition will include a 325 seat multi-purpose auditorium, a large general purpose classroom, and eight seminar rooms, two of which are adaptable as courtrooms. The addition will also house a television production studio, a computer learning center, a new post exchange and additional office space. The School's existing library and basement will undergo substantial renovation. The renovation will increase available library shelf space, provide for archive storage, enlarge the library reading area, and allow room for a computerized legal research area and a student lounge. A key focus of this renovation will be the Regimental Reading Room.

Office trailers and equipment were moved to the work site and the parking lot expansion started in January. The parking lot was completed in April and relieved some of the parking inconvenience at the work site. TJAGSA expansion is scheduled for completion in November 1989.

The Judge Advocate General's School has accomplished much this past year under the able leadership of Colonel Jack Rice. The ever changing nature of the law and increasing demand for professional continuing legal education does not allow us to rest upon our laurels. The staff and faculty is committed to maintaining the School's tradition of academic excellence and will ensure the School continues to meet the educational needs of today's Army lawyer.

FACULTY

The Judge Advocate General's School curriculum provides continuing legal education for military lawyers. The Academic Department faculty consists of 35 military attorneys and two officers not commissioned in the Judge Advocate General's Corps. Other attorneys on the School staff provide instruction periodically in areas of individual expertise. The faculty is supplemented by an extensive guest lecturer program. Faculty selections are based on academic qualifications, experience, and interest in teaching. All lawyers on the faculty have completed graduate programs in law beyond the first professional degree. Most faculty members have considerable practical experience in the areas of the law they teach. All of the instructors in the Criminal Law Division, for example, have substantial courtroom trial experience. Faculty members typically spend three years teaching, then return to other forms of legal practice. This rotation system aids in keeping instruction current and tied to the realities of military legal practice.

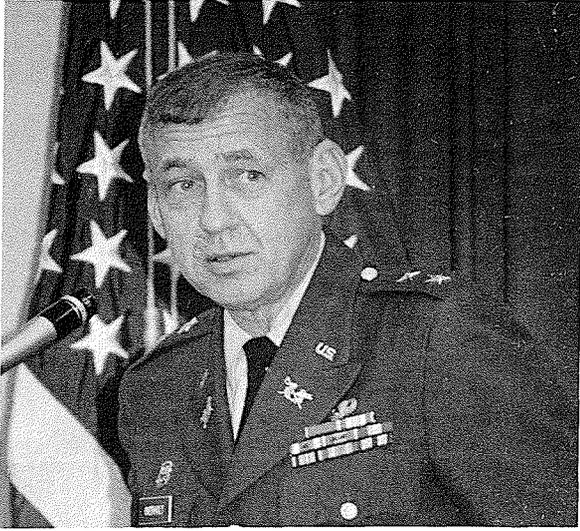

LIBRARY

The Judge Advocate General's School Library provides a place for research and study to faculty and students. The facility specializes in federal and military legal matters and maintains an extensive set of legal periodicals. The library provides ready access to the primary research materials needed in military legal practice. An automated research capability has been added to assist the student in legal research. For more extensive research, students and faculty use the nearby Arthur J. Morris Law Library and the Alderman Library on the main grounds of the University.

RESIDENT PROGRAM: The Basic Course

The Basic Course is offered three times each year. It is a 12-week introduction to the practice of law in the military. The first two weeks are taught at Fort Lee, Virginia. This training, called "School of the Officer," is designed to provide an overview of officer responsibilities and basic soldier skills. The final 10 weeks of the course are taught at the School in Charlottesville. A transition week introduces the organization, function and mission of the Judge Advocate General's Corps and defines the role of the military attorney. The remaining nine weeks are dedicated to substantive military law subjects and procedures, with emphasis on those areas most likely to be encountered during the first duty assignment.

One-half of the course consists of criminal law. All areas of criminal law and criminal procedure are taught through platform instruction and practical exercises. The nine practical exercises and two moot courts are built around specific courtroom evidentiary problems and are designed to prepare the student for duties as counsel in courts-martial. The attorney also participates in exercises structured to involve the student in typical law office situations.

One-third of the course deals with the four substantive areas of administrative and civil law: personnel law, the law of installation command, claims, and legal assistance. Practical exercises in interviewing and counseling, will drafting, legal research and opinion drafting are included.

The remainder of the course covers the military lawyer's role in government contract law and international law. The student is exposed to the federal acquisition process and basic legal concepts regarding the authority of the Government to enter into contracts. Practical exercises include analyzing common contract problems and conducting a legal review of a contract. International law is divided into two major areas. The first deals with the Law of War and includes the Hague and Geneva Conventions and the Code of Conduct. Instruction is designed to provide the student with the expertise necessary to teach fellow soldiers the law of war. The second area concerns special legal problems encountered by soldiers who are deployed overseas. The instruction discusses the effect that foreign law and international agreements have on the Army, as well as the individual soldier and family members. A graduate of the Basic Course can begin active military practice with a minimum of "on-the-job" orientation.

The Graduate Class

The Graduate Course was approved by the American Bar Association as a graduate law program on 25 February 1958. Each Graduate Class consists of between 60 and 85 students selected from the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps. All students are attorneys with about five to eight years of experience as practitioners. Attendance at the Graduate Course is competitive, with the selection of Army lawyers made by a board of officers convened by The Judge Advocate General of the Army. The Graduate Course consumes a full resident academic year. It prepares experienced attorneys for first-line supervisory positions and other positions of special responsibility within the Judge Advocate General's Corps. Students who successfully complete the course of instruction are awarded a Master of Laws (LL.M.) degree in Military Law.

Instruction in the Graduate Course varies in form, with lecture and Socratic dialogue predominating. Emphasis is placed on use of the seminar approach when possible and the case method where time and subject permit.

The Contract Law Division's core instruction is primarily technique-and-fact oriented. Its goal is to give students specific practical skills in reviewing government acquisition actions and solving problems arising under government contracts at military installations located in the United States. Contract Law electives provide students with specific instruction in such areas as solving typical contract law problems, litigation, disputes and remedies, negotiation, the commercial activities program, and weapons systems acquisition, and are designed to prepare students for assignments upon graduation.

The goal of the International Law Division is to provide the students in-depth knowledge of the law of war and operational law. While international law of peace subjects are taught as electives, the mandatory curriculum emphasizes those legal issues the JAG officer will encounter on training exercises and in combat. The instruction begins with the law of war and builds on that foundation with practical instruction on such subjects as the legal review of operations plans, low intensity conflict and security assistance. The course culminates in instruction on how to participate effectively in training exercises and how to perform as a force multiplier on the commander's operations team in combat.

BG Donald W. Hansen.
Assistant Judge Advocate General
for Military Law

The Criminal Law Division presents a balanced offering of procedural and evidentiary subjects. The mandatory curriculum is supplemented by electives in military jurisprudence, professional responsibility, scientific evidence, constitutional evidence, the Military Rules of Evidence, advanced trial procedure, advanced trial advocacy, and substantive criminal law.

BG John L. Fugh.
Assistant Judge Advocate General
for Civil Law

The Administrative and Civil Law Division presents over one-half of all core instruction in such diverse subjects as defensive federal litigation, law of military installations, military and civilian personnel law, labor relations, government information practices, claims, legal assistance, and selected additional topics. This Division also presents two unique core courses: communications, and management and leadership. These courses are designed to teach each attorney to write, speak, lead, and manage others more effectively. Many of the 14 Administrative Law elective offerings go into some of the core topics, such as military personnel law, claims, and legal assistance, in greater detail. Other electives, such as advanced federal litigation, environmental law, and nonappropriated funds, give the student an opportunity to learn more about subjects only briefly covered in the core curriculum.

Continuing Legal Education Courses

Each year the School offers more than 43 specialized continuing legal education courses. These courses vary in length from three days to three weeks, and provide practice-oriented continuing legal education for military attorneys. Most of the courses provide an update in a particular field of law, while some serve as advanced qualification courses for positions such as a military judge. Some courses are designed to acquaint nonlawyers with the role of the law in military activities. Over 3,000 students attend these resident courses annually.

Attendance at Resident Courses

Selection for attendance at the resident Graduate Course is made by a board of officers convened by The Judge Advocate General. Attendance at most resident continuing legal education courses is managed through the allocation of quotas to various Army commands. Attendance at the Military Judge Course is controlled by the U.S. Army Judiciary and The Judge Advocate General controls attendance at the Staff Judge Advocate Course. The Total Army Personnel Agency (TAPA) selects officers for attendance at Senior Officers Legal Orientation Courses. The School does not normally accept individual applications from attorneys or judge advocate offices. Interested lawyers should request a quota assignment through the training office of their organization.

Quotas are allocated on an annual basis. The size of most continuing legal education courses is controlled in order to ensure quality education through direct contact between the instructor and the student and through seminar discussion among students. In the spring of each year, the School furnishes Army major commands, other services, and selected federal agencies with a course schedule and a quota allocation by course. Selection of individual attorneys to attend courses offered by the School are made by the various commands and agencies, provided attendees meet the course prerequisites listed in this publication. NONRESIDENT PROGRAM General Information

The Nonresident Instruction Program closely parallels resident instruction and provides a means for students to increase their knowledge, acquire new skills, and improve job proficiency. Instructional materials are mailed to the student and prepaid envelopes are provided for returning the materials.

A subcourse consists of one or more lessons pertaining to a specific subject. Each lesson contains a practical exercise or has a study assignment in texts provided with the subcourse. The student first studies the text assignment, then completes the lesson and consults the approved solutions furnished in the subcourse packet to ascertain whether the lesson objective has been accomplished. When the student has completed all the lessons, the examination (which is also furnished with the subcourse materials) is taken.

A course consists of a series of subcourses or separate lessons designed to provide comprehensive instruction at a particular level or in a particular job-oriented subject area. Normally, three subcourses are mailed at one time to a student enrolled in a course. As subcourses are completed and returned, additional subcourses are mailed to the student.

Eligibility

The following individuals are eligible for enrollment:

- Members of all components of the armed forces of the United States and retirees.
- Civilian employees of any agency of the federal government whose official duties require knowledge obtainable through correspondence course study.

Enrollment

Restrictive eligibility requirements and course prerequisites are listed at the beginning of each course when applicable.

Applications for enrollment should be submitted on DA Form 145. This form is available through normal military distribution. The DA Form 145 should be submitted through one of the following channels:

- Individuals on extended active duty with the U.S. Army should submit applications to their commanding officer.

- Unit members of the USAR not on extended active duty should send applications to the commanding officer who is the custodian of their military personnel records jacket.

- Non-unit reservists should send applications to their Personnel Management Officer, U.S. Army Reserve Personnel Center, ATTN: DARP-OPS-JA, 9700 Page Boulevard, St. Louis, Missouri 63132.

- Members of the Army National Guard not on extended active duty should submit applications through their commanding officer to the Army National Guard Operating Activities Center, Military Education Branch, ATTN: NGB-ARO-ME, Aberdeen Proving Ground, MD 21010-5470.

- Members of any component of the Armed Forces of the United States other than a component of the U.S. Army should submit applications as prescribed by the individual's branch of service.

- Civilian employees of the U.S. Government should submit applications to their supervisors. A copy of the employee's current job description should be attached to the enrollment application.

Enrollment by active duty judge advocates in the Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Correspondence Course will require approval of the Personnel, Plans and Training Office, OTJAG.

Maintaining Enrollment

Students enrolled in selected subcourses must complete all subcourses in which enrolled or 30 credit hours, whichever is less, during each enrollment year.

Advanced Course students must complete 75 credit hours in each enrollment year. Basic Course students must complete the entire course in a one-year period.

Students enrolled in any course must complete the course in the time limitation listed at the beginning of each course.

Awards of resident credit will apply toward the annual enrollment requirements for the enrollment year in which the award is made. Awards of constructive and equivalent credit will not apply toward annual requirements for enrollment. USAR school credit for common military subjects does not count toward annual credit hour requirements.

Independent Enrollment

An applicant who does not meet the eligibility requirements for enrollment in one of the judge advocate correspondence courses or who wishes only to take selected subcourses may enroll in specific subcourses provided the applicant's duties or prospective duties require the training that may be accomplished by means of such subcourse. Enrollment as an independent student requires that the student complete 30 credit hours per year or the individual subcourse, whichever is less.

Constructive and Equivalent Credit

Equivalent credit may be awarded for portions of the Basic and Advanced Courses. Equivalent credit may be granted upon satisfactory completion of essentially the same program of instruction at another military or civilian institution and for completion of individual subcourses covering the same material when the subcourse was not taken as part of either the Basic or the Advanced Course.

Equivalent credit will also be given for completion of the following resident courses at The Judge Advocate General's School:

Resident Course	Equivalent Credit for Subcourse
Claims Course	JA 128
Contract Attorneys Course	JA 112
Fiscal Law Course	JA 115
Federal Labor Relations Course	JA 125A, JA 125B
Legal Assistance Course	JA 26, JA 129
Administrative Law for Military Installations	JA 124, JA 126, JA 127,
Military Judge Course	JA 131, JA 132, JA 133,
	JA 134, JA 137
Law of War Workshop	JA 142

Constructive credit may be granted for truly unique, in-depth, specialized experience. Because the purpose of the Nonresident Instruction Program is to provide military legal education and not to award credit for education, constructive or equivalent credit will be given principally when little purpose would be served by insisting that the student complete a program of instruction for which the student already has met the qualifications or when the student has taken a similar course at another institution. Regular military or civilian legal experience will not qualify for constructive credit. Normally, there will be no constructive credit granted for JA 150 or JA 151 -- the writing requirements.

Written applications for constructive or equivalent credit may be submitted along with a resume of qualifications. Applications should be sent to: Commandant, The Judge Advocate General's School, ATTN: JAGS-ADN-C, Charlottesville, VA 22903-1781.

Information for Reserve and National Guard Officers

Judge Advocates in the Army Reserve and Army National Guard may fulfill military educational requirements for promotion through correspondence course programs. Completion of the Reserve Component Judge Advocate Officer Basic Correspondence Course (JAOBC) meets the requirements for promotion to captain. Completion of the Judge Advocate Officer Advanced Correspondence Course (JAOAC) is required for promotion to major.

Members of the USAR and ARNGUS not on active duty may earn retirement points by participating in the Army Correspondence Course Program. One retirement point is earned for successful completion of three credit hours of correspondence course work. This School forwards statements of credit hours earned by Reserve students to the servicing data processing centers within two weeks after the end of the Reservist's retirement year. Retirement points for Army National Guard personnel are computed by National Guard Headquarters from copies of subcourse completion reports the School sends to students through their enrollment channels.

Reserve Component officers who wish to attend resident continuing legal education (CLE) courses at The Judge Advocate General's School must submit applications and obtain quotas prior to attendance. USAR officers submit applications on DA Form 1058 and National Guard officers submit applications on NGB Form 64. USAR unit members obtain quotas through unit channels and USAR Individual Mobilization Augmentees (IMA) obtain quotas from the JAGC PMO at the Army Reserve Personnel Center (ARPERCEN) in St. Louis. National Guard officers forward applications to the ARNG Military Education Branch, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland. All applicants must indicate height, weight, and date of birth on their applications plus pertinent course numbers listed elsewhere in this bulletin. Information copies of applications should be forwarded to: Commandant, The Judge Advocate General's School, U.S. Army, ATTN: JAGS-GRA, Charlottesville, VA 22903-1781. Individuals enrolled in JAOAC through the USAR School system should notify the Guard and Reserve Affairs Department to facilitate record-keeping and issuance of course completion certificates. USAR schools offer branch immaterial Officer Advanced Courses Phases I, III and V on a rotational basis. The Judge Advocate General's School offers Phases II, IV and VI of the JAOAC in residence each summer on a rotational basis. National Guard officers will obtain JAOAC resident phase quotas from the Military Education Branch as described above; all USAR officers will obtain quotas from the JAGC PMO at ARPERCEN.

Individuals who desire more information about the Army Judge Advocate Reserve program should correspond with the Director, Judge Advocate Guard and Reserve Affairs Department.

Correspondence Course Programs

The nonresident program includes an officer Basic and Advanced Course, an introductory course for legal specialists, a course for legal noncommissioned officers, a course for Army warrant officers in the legal field, and an elective program of courses for students who wish to take additional legal subjects. The detailed structure of each of these appears on the next several pages and descriptions of individual subcourses follow.

The Basic Course is designed for the new Reserve Component military attorney. It offers fundamental legal instruction and serves as a brief overview of military legal practice. The course is not intended as a substitute for the resident class for those officers going on active duty.

The Advanced Course is the nonresident version of the Graduate Course described under the resident program in this booklet. The course provides graduate level instruction in criminal, contract, international, administrative and civil law, and communications and writing skills. Many of these subjects are offered in resident continuing legal education courses taught at TJAGSA each summer. The Judge Advocate General's School's military subjects phases do not equate to USAR school military subjects phases. Additionally, TJAGSA's common military subjects phases are more comprehensive in coverage than USAR school military subjects phases and completion of phases I, III, and V through the USAR school will not result in complete credit for Judge Advocate common military subjects phases. Students may complete the Advanced Course by a combination of resident and nonresident work. A more detailed memorandum covering the relationship of the correspondence course program, USAR school courses, and resident CLE courses is provided to students when they enroll in the Nonresident Program.

The Law for Legal Specialists Correspondence Course covers basic material in legal research, criminal law, and organization of a staff judge advocate office. Successful completion of this course is a prerequisite for attendance at the resident Law for Legal Noncommissioned Officers Course.

The Administration and Law for Legal Noncommissioned Officers Correspondence Course is designed to improve technical skills involved in the management and operation of an Army legal office.
