SHOULDER SLEEVE INSIGNIA APPROVED FOR JAG SCHOOL

Under the provisions of paragraphs 14-16, AR 670-5, the Commandant received approval on 21 January 1972 for a shoulder sleeve insignia for uniform wear by Staff, Faculty, and Advanced Class personnel of The Judge Advocate General's School from the Chief of Heraldry, Institute of Heraldry, U.S. Army. The patch design is adapted from the School's distinctive crest. It is emblazoned across a shield of traditional blue. Its lighted torch symbolizes the illumination of intellect and leadership supplied by the School. The torch is surmounted by a gold open laurel wreath, below a gold sword and pen, with points downward, the tip ends of the wreath passing under the sword blade and pen quill.

FOREWORD

The Judge Advocate General's School soon begins its twenty-second year on the Grounds of the University of Virginia. In these years "the Home of the Military Lawyer" has consistently sought to serve the Army Lawyer in the field—by preparing him in our resident courses, keeping him supplied with the most recent legal information in a clear and concise form, and providing good quality continuing legal education programs both in the resident short courses and in our nonresident extension courses. But our active lawyer is only one part of our Corps and the School has likewise become the home for the lawyers in the Army Reserve and the Army and Air National Guard—the other two vital parts of our Army.

In the past year the School has added an expanded Phase I for our Basic Course, a Paraprofessional Course, a Status of Forces Agreement Course, an Environmental Law Seminar, and a Senior Officers Legal Orientation Course. The latter course was conducted at Fort Hood, Fort Lewis, Fort Sill, the Army War College, and twice at the School in Charlottesville. Also, plans have been made for offering the Civil Law I and Civil Law II Courses in one week phases entitled Law of Military Installations Phase, Claims Phase, Personnel and Administrative Law Phase, and Legal Assistance Phase.

In the Commandant's section of this report, I have outlined our objectives for FY 1972. As you read the report, you will see that we achieved many objectives but not all of them. As we look to FY 1973, we will build upon the past but plan for the future.

As the School begins a new year, we again look forward to graduating judge advocates that are more eager and more informed. Continued and added emphasis upon our resident instruction is planned for FY 1973. The School will publish more quality research tools and materials both for our students and the lawyer in the field. We must count on our users to tell us what they need.

We approach FY 1973 with an excellent Staff and Faculty, a vital and interested Board of Visitors, and strong ties with the entire Army—Active, Army Reserve, and Army and Air National Guard. In this coming year, we must maximize all our assets—lawyers, technicians, clerks, reporters and the many dedicated and competent civilians who serve the Corps.

INTRODUCTION

SECTION 1

HISTORY OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S SCHOOL

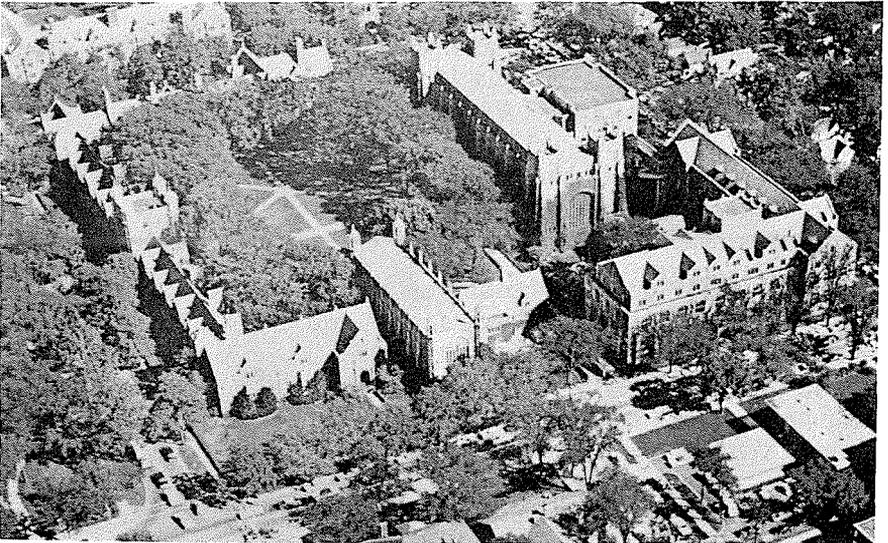

Judge advocates have served the United States Army since 1775, but no effort was made to provide them with formal training in military law until the opening days of World War II.

The "Home of the Military Lawyer" began on a temporary basis in February 1942 at the National University Law School (now part of the National Law Center of the George Washington University), Washington, D. C. In August 1942, operations were transferred to the University of Michigan Law School in Ann Arbor, where Colonel Edward H. Young, JAGC, was the Commandant. In the following months, hundreds of officers were trained at Ann Arbor. By June 1944, over two-thirds of the active duty strength of the Judge Advocate General's Corps were graduates of the School. Colonel Reginald C. Miller, JAGC, became the Commandant in December 1944. The end of the war substantially reduced the need for trained military lawyers, and in 1946 the School was deactivated.

A 1946 study on the administration of military justice recommended that provisions be made for the training of Army lawyers in military law, and plans were soon being prepared in the Office of The Judge Advocate General to implement the recommendation. The passage of the Uniform Code of Military Justice and the Korean conflict accentuated the need for judge advocate training facilities. As a consequence, The Judge Advocate General's School was activated at another temporary training facility at Fort Myer, Virginia, again under the guidance of Colonel Young. Approximately 200 officers attended several five-week courses in basic military law taught by five officer-instructors.

By this time, the decision had been made to establish The Judge Advocate General's School as a permanent branch service school. It was decided to locate the School within 200 miles of Washington, but sites as far away as Fort Crockett, Texas, and Fort Rodman, Massachusetts, had been considered. In the spring of 1951 a survey was made of the facilities offered by the University of Virginia, and on 2 August 1951 the present Judge Advocate General's School was established on the Grounds of the University of Virginia. Colonel Charles L. Decker was appointed Commandant of the reactivated School. Colonel Decker has been succeeded by the following Commandants:

Colonel Nathaniel B. Rieger	15 June 1955-1 March 1957
Colonel John G. O'Brien	1 March 1957-13 May 1961
Colonel John F. T. Murray	1 July 1961-31 December 1964
Colonel John W. Burtchaell	1 January 1965-30 June 1966
Colonel Lewis F. Shull	25 July 1966-3 September 1967
Colonel Kenneth C. Crawford	3 September 1967-1 June 1970

ORGANIZATION OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S SCHOOL

The Judge Advocate General's School, U. S. Army, is located on the Grounds of the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. Its function is to orient the Army lawyer on the fundamentals of military law, to provide current training material, and to inform him of the latest developments in the law. Formal instruction and legal publications, including texts, periodicals, and extension courses, are used to fulfill this purpose.

The Judge Advocate General's School operates on a year-round basis. Over 15,669 students have graduated from courses offered at the School in its 21 years of operation at Charlottesville. During Fiscal Year 1972, 1,324 students were graduated from courses offered at the School.

The Judge Advocate General's School is composed of the Office of the Commandant, three operational departments, and the Office of the School Secretary.

The Academic Department. This department conducts resident instruction for all active and reserve component Army judge advocates, as well as some Naval, Marine, Air Force, and Coast Guard officers. It also prepares its own academic texts. Resident courses include the Judge Advocate Basic Course, for the orientation of newly commissioned judge advocates, and the Judge Advocate Advanced Course, which covers the field of military law in greater depth. The department also conducts a number of specialized courses, generally two weeks in length, including courses in military justice, procurement law, international law, administrative law, civil affairs law, legal assistance, litigation, a combination resident and nonresident reserve course, and refresher courses for reserve component officers. The School is one of two in the United States which offers formal instruction for trial judges. The department also presents a Senior Officers Legal Orientation Course for line officers, and courses for legal clerks, warrant officers, and legal paraprofessional personnel. The department is composed of the International and Comparative Law, Civil Law, Criminal Law, Military Subjects, and Procurement Law Divisions.

Reserve Affairs Department. This department is responsible for developing nonresident training programs to insure the continued high level of professional legal competence required of military lawyers. In this connection, the department administers the Judge Advocate General Staff Course, the judge advocate portion of the Army extension course program, and prepares and distributes the judge advocate nonresident training material used in extension courses, USAR Schools, and staff training materials used by the Judge Advocate General Service Organization (JAGSO) Detachments, the Judge Advocate Sections of USAR, and National Guard units. The Reserve Affairs Department is responsible for personnel matters such as the processing of applications for appointments and transfers, management of the mobilization designee program for OTJAG, the granting of constructive credit, and for career counseling. The department also provides liaison through periodic staff visits with the USAR School Judge Advocate Branch Departments, the JAGSO Detachments, and National Guard units.

The Plans and Publications Department. This department is responsible for research in the military legal field; prompt dissemination of the results of the research to members of the Judge Advocate General's Corps; special projects such as The Judge Advocate General's Conference and the Military Legal Subjects Instructors Conference; the preparation of permanent and periodical military legal publications, including the Military Law Review, the Judge Advocate Legal Service, The Army Lawyer, the Staff Judge Advocate's Handbook, the Legal Clerk's Handbook, and the MCM Annotation; the development and preparation of common subjects and ROTC instructional material including training films; and the development and preparation of judge advocate extension course material and USAR school instructional material; planning for the legal portion of the annual logistical exercise, LOGEX; and the development and preparation of the MOS 71D and 71E evaluation tests. In addition, the department is responsible for the Alumni Association, the Alumni Newsletter, liaison with the American and Virginia Bar Associations, the business offices of the local Federal Bar Association and Association of the United States Army Chapters, and legal assistance, claims, survivors' assistance, and next-of-kin notifications for all military personnel in the Charlottesville area.

BOARD OF VISITORS

A Board of Visitors has been appointed pursuant to AR 15-1 to insure that the high standards of the School are maintained and to assist in the determination of areas requiring improvement. The Board, composed of leading civilian practitioners and legal educators, examines the varied operations of the School and sums up its findings, with criticisms and recommendations, in a report submitted at the end of its inspection.

The Board did not meet as a group during FY 1972. However, Colonel Van Benschoten and Professor McDougal visited the School in their individual capacities as members of the Board in order to provide continuing advice on the School's operations.

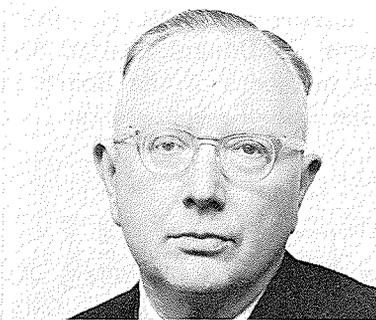

Birney M. Van Benschoten, Attorney at Law, New York City; General Counsel for American Overseas Petroleum, Ltd. [Caltex Group]; Colonel, United States Army Reserve (Retired), The Judge Advocate General's Corps.

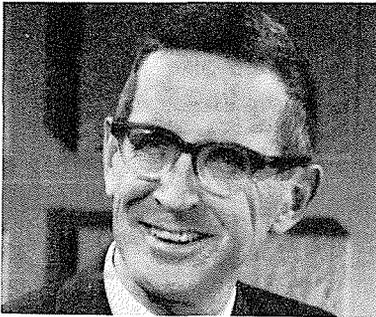

John H. Finger, Attorney at Law, San Francisco, California, and senior partner of the law firm of Finger, Brown and Abramson; past president of the California Bar Association; Colonel, United States Army Reserve (Retired), The Judge Advocate General's Corps.

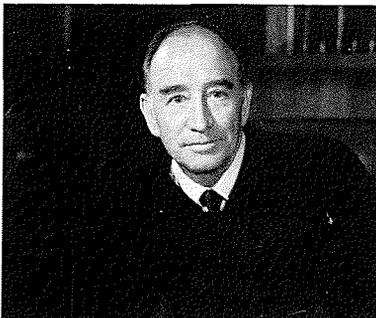

Eberhard P. Deutsch, Attorney at Law and senior partner of the law firm of Deutsch, Kerrigan and Stiles, New Orleans, Louisiana; Editor-in-Chief of the American Bar Association publication, The International Lawyer; Colonel, United States Army Reserve (Retired), and Civilian Aide to the Secretary of the Army from Louisiana.

Myres S. McDougal, Sterling Professor of Law, The Yale Law School, New Haven, Connecticut; former president of the Association of American Law Schools.

John W. Reed, Ann Arbor, Michigan, Professor of Law, The University of Michigan Law School and Wayne State University Law School; Director, The Institute of Continuing Legal Education; former Dean of the University of Colorado School of Law.

Honorable Alfred P. Murrah, Director, Federal Judicial Center, Senior Judge and former Chief Judge, 10th Circuit, U. S. Court of Appeals.

ACCREDITED BY THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

Shortly after locating at the University of Virginia, the quality of The Judge Advocate General's School's Advanced Course Program was brought to the attention of the American Bar Association. A detailed inspection of the School by ABA representatives was conducted and on 22 February 1955, the School was accredited by the ABA and its Advanced Course deemed worthy of the LL.M. Master of Laws degree. This accreditation was reaffirmed by Lindsey Cowen, Dean of the University of Georgia Law School and former professor at the University of Virginia Law School, after this three-day inspection of the JAG School in March 1971.

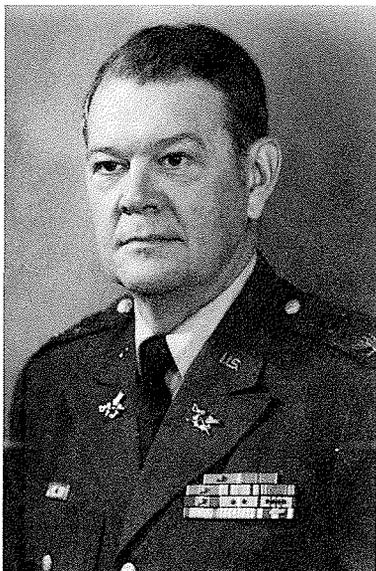

Board Members PETERSON, FINGER, DEUTSCH and REED and ABA Representative DEAN COWEN.

SECTION 5

OFFICE OF THE COMMANDANT

The Commandant is the Commander of The Judge Advocate General's School, U. S. Army, a Class II activity of the Office of The Judge Advocate General. As such, he is responsible for all post functions of the School to include housing, maintenance of School facilities, nonappropriated funds, claims, legal assistance, personnel administration, and logistics. The Commandant exercises special court-martial jurisdiction.

As the Commander of a major activity of the Office of The Judge Advocate General, the Commandant is responsible for many research and planning projects assigned to the activity by The Judge Advocate General. In addition, the Commandant is the senior member of the School Faculty and Staff in his role as head of the School itself. Working through three department directors and the School Secretary, the Commandant formulates broad policy guidance and direction for the Staff and Faculty. This guidance is concerned both with administration of the School and the educational programs of the School. The Commandant is, in effect, a law school dean, a post commander, a research director and training officer for JAGC reservists.

COLONEL JOHN JAY DOUGLASS
Commandant

Early in FY 1972, the Commandant announced his objectives of the year. These objectives provided the broad guidance for the Faculty and Staff for the year and provide a yardstick to measure the year's accomplishments. Section 6 outlines these objectives and succeeding sections detail the degree to which these objectives were achieved.

SECTION 6

OBJECTIVES FOR FISCAL YEAR 1972 FOR THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S SCHOOL, U. S. ARMY

The purpose of the School is to provide service to the entire Judge Advocate General's Corps. This will be done through excellence of resident instruction, timely and effective military legal publications, maintaining a viable and relevant reserve training program, forward-looking research in military law and emphasis on preparation of training materials for teaching law to non-legal personnel in the Army.

Resident Instruction.

(1) The primary mission of the School is resident instruction which requires excellence of presentation. This axiom must not be an excuse to maintain the status quo but rather a charter to constantly reorganize the instructional program and to revise and improve methods of instruction. Continual effort will be made to increase the introduction of interdisciplinary education, professional responsibility and relevance of academic instruction to field responsibilities of the military lawyer. Materials on litigation in the civil courts will be interrelated to the study of military law.

BG PERSONS, BG BABBITT, MG HODSON, MG PRUGH, MG PARKER,

(2) Emphasis shall be directed at serving all Army lawyers, military and civilian, in every part of the School mission. Civilian attorneys employed in the military departments must be encouraged to utilize all activities of the School and to make real the slogan "Home of the Military Lawyer" for them as well as those in uniform. Efforts should continue to secure attendance of career civilian attorneys at the Advanced Course.

(3) Continuing efforts will be directed at greater participation with lawyers in other military services. Invitations to participate in School programs will be extended whenever appropriate.

Advanced Course.

The Advanced Course must be graduate level instruction. More planning should be given to the curriculum of the Advanced Class with emphasis on communications arts and graduate level research programs. The teaching should be done in semester hours in connection with normal academic procedure in graduate level institutions.

Basic Course.

The tasks required of a newly commissioned judge advocate should be defined to improve the skills instruction given to the Basic Class. Instruction to the Basic Class should be relevant and practical.

Continuing Legal Education.

A re-evaluation should be made of the Continuing Legal Education programs for resident instruction. A review should be made of the courses desired and needed by judge advocates in the field. Continuation of courses previously presented should be reviewed both as to advisability and content.

Reserve Components.

Reserve training should emphasize on-the-job training and relationships with the Active Army. Unit training programs must be made more relevant to judge advocate functions in the Active Army. The School should assist in removing from reserve programs non-legal functions not required.

Law for Laymen.

Consideration must be given to law for the layman with the beginnings of instruction for senior officers in all of the various fields of law with which they will become associated and emphasis on improving the training in disciplinary matters for company commanders.

Paraprofessional Instruction.

(1) In view of the ever-increasing responsibilities of the Army lawyer and the prospect of a decrease in JAGC personnel, it is essential that the Corps achieve the most efficient and productive utilization of its professional resources. The School must assume a major role in meeting this challenge by preparing lay personnel to perform routine legal and non-legal functions now carried out by judge advocate officers.

(2) The School must identify those non-professional duties for which Army lawyers are presently responsible but which may be accomplished by clerical personnel or can be performed by other staff agencies. All routine legal tasks which do not require the attention of a professionally educated attorney must be identified for assimilation into a training program for paraprofessional legal assistants.

(3) The School must develop and present resident courses to produce qualified paraprofessional assistants in criminal law with emphasis on investigatory and administrative support of tribunals and in civil law with emphasis upon the support of military legal research, claims adjudication, and legal assistance functions. The School will develop parallel nonresident training courses for both military and civilian personnel as well as a correspondence course for legal secretaries. As a complement to these courses, a program for preparation and distribution of training materials to the field and for publication in current periodicals will be established.

Publications.

Publications prepared by the School must be oriented to their value to the JAG Corps in the field. Special texts, in addition to their use in the classroom, should be published for use as desk books by graduates. The Army Lawyer must be a practical publication for use by judge advocates world-wide. Continued emphasis will be given to scholarly writing by staff and faculty for publication not only within School publications but elsewhere.

Library.

Library facilities should be improved and reorganized and greater emphasis be given to the military law aspects of the library, both historically and perspectivevely.

Allied Officers.

More concern must be given to the instruction of allied officers so that the training is relevant to their needs, and separating them from the regular and advanced classes for specialized training when appropriate.

Faculty.

A policy decision should be sought from the OTJAG on tenure of instructors at The JAG School with emphasis on standardized increased length of tour, particularly for career officers on a par with assignments in the Pentagon.

Civilian Employees.

The training program for civilian employees should be continued and include training on site with utilization of School facilities where practicable. This training program should be part of a continuing program to improve the morale, esprit, capability and performance of the civilian employees.

School Organization.

The School organization will be restudied. This study should determine whether the present School structure is responsive to the needs of the Corps and the Army in the years to come and include a re-evaluation of the grade structure of military and civilian personnel and relation of administrative or non-legal personnel to lawyers. Emphasis should be given to relieving lawyers of non-legal responsibilities and to the use of non-legal trained personnel in duties heretofore performed by lawyers.

School Facilities.

Continuing effort should be made to improve the living conditions of military personnel in Charlottesville. This goal should include improvements to the commissary availability, bookstore, movie, club facilities, BOQ, and family housing.

The official source of information concerning courses in instruction at all Army service schools, including The Judge Advocate General's School, is the U. S. Army Formal Schools Catalog (Department of the Army Pamphlet 350-10). That catalog provides detailed information for staff officers, commanders, and personnel officers who are concerned with the selection of individuals for school attendance; for commissioned officers, both active and reserve, of the armed forces, and all civilian employees of the government who are interested in attending particular courses; and for others who may wish to acquaint themselves with the Army's training opportunities. In addition, Army regulations govern related matters such as attendance by military personnel from foreign countries. Quotas for the courses mentioned above except for the Military Judge Course and the Warrant Officers Course are controlled by the Academic Department of the School. Quotas for the Military Judge Course are controlled by the U. S. Army Judiciary in Washington, D. C. for active duty Army personnel. EDUCATIONAL ADVISOR

Dr. John A. Sanderson, Associate Professor and Assistant Dean, School of Education, University of Virginia, serves as Educational Advisor to the School Academic Department. Dr. Sanderson is a highly qualified educator holding an Ed.D. with specialization in educational psychology and test construction.

DR. JOHN A. SANDERSON
Educational Advisor

The role of the Educational Advisor is to provide a source of information on new developments in the educational field, particularly methods of instruction, and to introduce appropriate innovations and developments into the academic program.

The Educational Advisor performs continuing consulting service to the School on his own initiative. On the basis of his educational background and his experience, he analyzes the effectiveness of teaching techniques, including classroom presentation methods, educational materials, examination and grading procedures. He also prepares, distributes, and evaluates critiques of the School program to analyze student response to the methods of instruction. After consideration of all factors he then makes recommendations for changes appropriate to the particular circumstances at the School and in accordance with its designated mission.

JUDGE ADVOCATE ADVANCED COURSE (5-18-C22)

General. This course offers an academic year of graduate level study in all areas of military legal practice. Highly qualified and carefully selected career judge advocates or legal specialists of the armed forces of the United States and Allied nations attend this course.

The course is intended to deepen and broaden a philosophical appreciation of the continual impact of legal principles and standards at all levels of command and thus to prepare the officer student to render legal services to higher commanders under varying conditions of present and future military operations and organizations.

The purpose of the Advanced Course is not only to prepare capable Judge Advocates but also to provide a basis for the continuing development of career judge advocates as professionals. The School seeks to develop the advanced students into Army lawyers capable of heading a large law office and capable of being Army judge advocates, the chiefs of divisions in the Office of The Judge Advocate General, area military judges, and other senior staff officers in the Corps.

The curriculum of this 39 week course (September-June) includes the study of military criminal law and practice, the philosophy of penology, public contract law, statutory and regulatory controls and directives for procurement, taxation, administrative law concerning military and civilian personnel, investigative powers, administrative board procedures, administration of military reservations, nonappropriated fund activities, property, claims, legal assistance, civil affairs, domestic emergencies, international law, the legal aspects of counterinsurgency, comparative law, and jurisprudence.

In addition, successful completion of the course requires submission of a thesis of graduate level quality which makes a substantial contribution to military legal scholarship. The topics and scope notes of the theses prepared by members of the 20th Advanced Course may be found in Table 4. Several will be published in the forthcoming issues of the Military Law Review.

The 20th Advanced Class began on 7 September 1971 with 25 students in attendance: 19 U. S. Army Judge Advocates, one U. S. Navy Judge Advocate, two U. S. Marine Corps Judge Advocates, one Allied officer from Iran, one Allied officer from Indonesia, and one Allied officer from Venezuela. The class was graduated on 2 June 1972. Academic awards for the 20th Advanced Class are noted in Table 6.

Course Structure. The course during FY 1972 was conducted in two semesters as follows (bracketed numbers following course titles refer to the number of semester credit hours granted for that course, e.g. [4]) :

Special attention will be given to recent developments in the areas of equal opportunity and environmental protection.

LAW OF WAR [2].

S. military forces in a foreign country and the rights and duties resulting from such presence in the areas of criminal and civil law; the basic concepts and procedures of foreign legal systems, concentrating on the Civil Law System and its variations in the Far East.

Thesis Program. At the beginning of the first semester, the students were provided a list of approximately 100 suggested thesis topics covering a wide spectrum of military law. The students were required to select a topic from one of the suggested topics or submit one of their own creation for approval by the academic division most closely related to the subject. Upon approval of that topic, a thesis advisor was assigned from the faculty.

After submission of the final draft of the thesis, students prepared for thesis orals held during the period 17 April through 21 April 1972. A thesis committee composed of the thesis advisor, guest expert, and School representative graded each paper, heard the oral presentation of the thesis by the student, and examined the student orally following their oral presentation. The final grade was determined by averaging the committee members' individual grades on the paper and oral presentation. Thesis topics and scope notes may be found in Table 4. Guest members of the Thesis Committee are listed in Table 5.

Thesis Oral Presentation

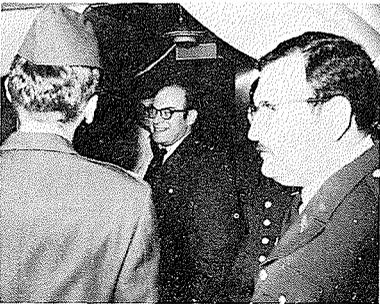

Crisis in Credibility. As a result of reports from the field concerning a seemingly prevalent belief on the part of many commanders, junior officers, and senior noncommissioned officers that the military justice machinery had “collapsed,” the 20th Advanced Class, using an adaptation of the “Think Tank” approach, attacked the problem during the month of September, 1971. The Class divided into five groups each studying the problem from a different point of view: the junior enlisted man; the senior noncommissioned officer; the company grade officer; the special court-martial convening authority; and the Staff Judge Advocate. The guideline for the study—“not only decide what needs to be done, but do it”—was followed to the letter.

The group studying junior enlisted men concluded that the soldier lacks appreciation of and confidence in the criminal law system. The group determined that emphasis should be placed on achieving understanding of the fairness of the system. In order to solve the problem the group produced new lesson plans for enlisted personnel to be taught by a team of two, the unit's company commander and a JAG officer.

The groups studying the senior noncommissioned officers and the company grade officer determined that the lack of credibility stemmed from a lack of readily accessible and understandable information on military law. The groups prepared a "Legal Guide for Commanders" which covers all areas of military justice and legal administration with which the commander deals. The Guide was subsequently published as DA Pamphlet 27-19.

The Advanced Class group studying the special court-martial convening authority prepared a "Desk Book for Special Court-Martial Convening Authorities" containing materials on all aspects of military justice to include post-trial actions. The Desk Book is now DA Pamphlet 27-18.

The group looking at the Staff Judge Advocate produced a report entitled "The Judge Advocate: A Bridge of Understanding" which outlines the judge advocate's responsibilities, states his relationship with The Judge Advocate General and delineates the operations of a Judge Advocate office. The report's recommendations were distributed to staff judge advocates in the field and are being incorporated into a revision of The Staff Judge Advocate's Handbook, DA Pamphlet 27-5.

Bus to UN

The final recommendations of the study groups and the proposed publications were presented to the 1971 Judge Advocate General's Conference on 7 October 1971 before 115 of the senior officers of the Corps. Following this presentation, The Judge Advocate General directed field tests of the recommendations at Fort Rucker, Fort Campbell, Fort Lewis, Fort Knox, Fort Carson and Fort Polk.

Correctional Facilities. Midway in the second semester, the Advanced Class students journeyed by military aircraft to Fort Riley, Kansas, to visit the Correctional Training Facility. This gave the career judge advocates an opportunity to see the latest efforts in corrections treatment in use by the United States Army. The class then went on to Fort Leavenworth to tour the United States Army Disciplinary Barracks. While visiting Fort Leavenworth, the students also were given a tour and briefing at the Command and General Staff College.

United Nations. In February, the Advanced Class students had the opportunity to see international law and diplomacy in action when they traveled to New York City for a visit at the United Nations. During the three day tour, the class received detailed briefings from both United States, United Nations and foreign diplomats and legal advisers, including talks by Arab and Israeli representatives on the Middle East situation. The students observed various U. N. committee proceedings and were given a complete tour of the United Nations Headquarters.

THESIS TOPICS AND SCOPE NOTES

MAJOR ROBERT R. ALDINGER, The Proof of Marihuana and Drugs by Lay Witness Testimony, Learned Treatises and Laboratory Reports.

This thesis explores the possibility of proving the identity of marihuana through the use of lay witness testimony and learned treatises; and the possibility of proving the identity of narcotic drugs through the use of laboratory reports as direct evidence.

CAPTAIN FRANK W. BLUE, Special Findings—In Military Criminal Law.

A rarely used tool of the military criminal lawyer is the request for special findings. The author examines military and civilian case law and suggests when trial strategy may call for a particularized set of findings.

CAPTAIN ALI BOROJERDIAN, Iranian Armed Forces, The Role of Criminal Law in Preventing the Usage of Narcotic Drugs.

The author studies the United States, British, and Iranian approaches to the discouragement of drug use. Drawing on studies conducted in the various countries he concludes that the criminal law should lessen its sanctions on the user while increasing its sanctions on the distributor.

MAJOR R. REX BROOKSHIRE, II, Juror Selection Under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

This study examines both the law relating to juror selection under the Uniform Code of Military Justice and the procedures actually employed in the active general court-martial jurisdictions. This law and these procedures are compared to their civilian equivalents, and both systems are evaluated according to generally recognized standards of justice relating to juror selection. Empirical data—obtained by the conduct of three separate surveys—is utilized throughout the study, which concludes with a section devoted to suggested reforms.

CAPTAIN RICHARD C. BRUNING, The United Nation's Military Staff Committee: Future or Failure?

An examination of the little used United Nations Military Staff Committee. The thesis also examines United Nations peacekeeping activities in the Mid-East, Congo and Cyprus, and concludes with a recommendation for peacetime usage of the potential of the Military Staff Committee.

CAPTAIN NORMAN G. COOPER, My Lai and Military Justice—To What Effect?

This article analyzes the impact of the My Lai cases upon military justice from several perspectives. The story of the My Lai cases, their international law implications, the effect of the cases upon extraordinary writ practice in the military courts, the judicial competency of the My Lai courts-martial to deal with constitutional issues, and the attacks upon the military justice system in a federal forum are all considered in this evaluation; these elements tentatively reflect that the impact of My Lai upon the present military justice system has been rather limited.

LIEUTENANT ROBERT E. COYLE, USN, Surveillance From The Seas.

An international law and national defense perspective on the coastal monitoring of foreign nations by military vessels. The thesis considers international law encouragement of innocent passage and discouragement of aggressive activity in determining the permissible scope of nautical spying.

CAPTAIN ROBERT A. DeMETZ, The Incident to Service Rule of the Federal Tort Claims Act.

The author studies judicial interpretations of disbar to recovery under the FTCA. He notes inconsistencies in the current bases for recovery and suggests changes to provide fairer coverage under the Act.

CAPTAIN DJAELANI, Indonesia, The Military Law System in Indonesia.

This article presents a brief explanation on the military criminal law system in Indonesia and some comparisons with U. S. military criminal law: the positive laws; the types of courts; the role of the commander; the qualifications and rules of the judge, prosecutor, and defense counsel; the pretrial, trial and appellate procedure; and the improvements in the Indonesian positive laws, past, present, and future.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL GAUDY GIMENEZ, Venezuela, The Military Justice System of Venezuela.

A presentation of the military criminal legal system of Venezuela to include the sources for military legislation, the jurisdictional organization of military tribunals. The procedures used in time of peace and national emergency and major differences from the civilian criminal legal system will be highlighted.

CAPTAIN JOHN E. GRANT, JR., USMC, Confrontation V. Deposition.

An historical study of the Sixth Amendment right of confrontation as developed in both federal and military courts and an analysis of "actual unavailability" as it pertains to the admissibility of depositions in a court-martial.

MAJOR HAROLD E. HARRIS, Modern Weapons and the Law of Land Warfare.

This thesis presents an analysis of the law of land warfare as applied to the use of modern weapons. The customary and treaty law are examined, along with a concept of "developing expectations." Public policy considerations outside the realm of legality are put into perspective. The author outlines considerations in determining legality of weapons, and makes recommendations for improvements in the law of land warfare.

CAPTAIN GEORGE G. JACUNSKI, The National Environmental Policy Act and the Clean Air Act: Environmental Law Affecting Federal Procurement.

An examination of two recent federal environmental laws and their impact on the procurement attorney. Particular attention is given to the Acts' sanctions against government contractors who fail to comply with federal environmental policy.

MAJOR BRADLEY K. JONES, The Gravity of Administrative Discharges: A Legal and Empirical Evaluation.

An analysis of the proposition that an administrative discharge, although not tantamount to a punitive action at law, does, in reality, have pragmatic consequences more deleterious than a punitive discharge. A general exploration of the legal background for administrative discharges and the stigma argument, to include an analysis of statutory and case law, sets the stage for an examination of the present system upon the individual discharged and society. The thesis proposition is established by synthesizing the results of an empirical study of the employment policies of the business spectrum and the admissions policies of the educational spectrum. With that as a basis, the analysis inquires into the feasibility of proposed overhauls of the present administrative discharge procedures and concludes with a position not too unlike the status quo.

MAJOR RONALD A. KIENLEN, The Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals: Its Procedural Rules As They Effect the Admissibility of Evidence.

An examination of the ASBCA procedural rules effecting the admissibility of evidence, through analysis of the rules and an examination of their practical application, with a view of what ought to be the future practice for the decision making techniques of the ASBCA.

CAPTAIN JOHN E. KIRCHNER, The Law of Environmental Responsibility: A New Task for the Army Lawyer.

An introductory look at the evolving new law of environmental responsibility for the benefit of the Army lawyer, designed to illustrate the importance of acquiring a working knowledge of current developments in a rapidly changing and complex new legal field and to stress the need for the judge advocate becoming more involved in the decision-making process at every level of command, with particular emphasis on the unsettled problems of federal supremacy and the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 as they relate to the Army and its installations and activities.

CAPTAIN ARTHUR F. LINCOLN, JR., The Predictability of AWOL.

This article presents an analysis of the steps taken by the Army to solve the AWOL problem, a comparison of similar work done by civilians in the field of criminology, an evaluation of tests designed to expose character traits, and a recommended solution while keeping within the limits with which a commander must function.

CAPTAIN FRED K. MORRISON, Absolute Liability Under the Federal Tort Claims Act.

A review of the legislative history of the Federal Tort Claims Act, in order to determine if the Congress intended to make the United States liable for claims based on absolute liability. An analysis of the case law to determine if the statute has been correctly interpreted in rejecting absolute liability. The article concludes that the Act as presently written and interpreted by the Supreme Court would permit the imposition of absolute liability. However, in view of the reluctance of the courts to impose absolute liability, the Congress should amend the Act so as to clearly provide for absolute liability.

MAJOR WALTER NICEWICZ, The Executive Agreement, Foreign Policy and National Security.

The author traces the history of the Executive Agreement in the making of American foreign policy. He examines the current consequences of removing the Congress from its role as treaty-approving authority.

CAPTAIN JOHN M. RINTAMAKI, If He Sees It Can He Seize It.

This thesis discusses one doctrine, the plain view search, used to render evidence admissible even though produced by the warrantless conduct of police. The basic elements of the doctrine are studied in order to provide an understanding for one who has not thought in plain view terms. The maximum variations/intrusions authorized by the sparse number of cases are also studied to provide the present outside parameters of the doctrine.

CAPTAIN LAWRENCE J. SANDELL, The Grand Jury and the Article 32: A Comparison.

A comparison of procedural safeguards common to both the federal grand jury and the military's Article 32 investigation, including a study of the historical development of both institutions, together with suggestions for improving the Article 32 procedure.

CAPTAIN PAUL WEINBERG, Disposition of Traffic Offenses on Army Installations in the United States.

Army installation commanders bear the responsibility for establishing and maintaining an effective motor vehicle traffic supervision program for the protection of personnel and property on their installations. Current administrative and judicial sanctions, however, are inadequate for the task of disciplining both military and civilian on-post offenders. This study discusses these inadequacies and suggests some new approaches, including a liberalized interpretation of the Assimilative Crimes Act, for more effective judicial enforcement against all offenders.

CAPTAIN EDWIN W. WELCH, USMC, Classified Information and the Courts.

A survey of the law of classified information, with emphasis on the Pentagon Papers Case, the Freedom of Information Act, Executive Privilege, and the problems that are unique to courts-martial involving classified matters.

This program is designed to give new judge advocates practical experience in military trial practice and procedure. Moot courts are simulated general courts-martial based on fact situations prepared by faculty members. The positions of trial and defense counsel, members of the court, and witnesses are filled by members of the Basic Course. Each student has at least one opportunity to act as trial or defense counsel. The military judge's part is played by a member of the staff and faculty, the Advanced Class, or the U. S. Army Judiciary, who are certified military judges.

USCMA Admission.

Each class travels to Washington, D. C., where, upon recommendation of The Judge Advocate General, they are admitted to practice before the United States Court of Military Appeals in a ceremony in the court chambers before the three-judge panel.

The Allied officers received the same instruction, took the same examinations, and submitted the same written papers and theses as their American colleagues. These requirements indicate the high level of fluency in both the written and spoken aspects of the English language that these officers had achieved prior to their arrival at the School.

On 14 December 1971, the annual banquet honoring the Allied officers attending classes at the School was held. Distinguished guests who came to honor our Allies included The Judge Advocate General, a former Assistant Judge Advocate General (now Deputy Director for Attaches of the Defense Intelligence Agency), the Defense Attache of the Indonesian Embassy, the Assistant Judge Advocate General of the Republic of China Navy and official and unofficial representatives from Great Britain and Iran. In addition, during their stay in Charlottesville, the Allied officers were escorted on a tour of historic Williamsburg, Jamestown, the MacArthur Memorial in Norfolk, the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, and Fort Eustis, Virginia.

NONRESIDENT TRAINING

As part of its training function, the Reserve Affairs Department administers the following extension courses for armed forces personnel and Federal Government employees:

THE JUDGE ADVOCATE BASIC INDOCTRINATION EXTENSION COURSE.

This course is designed to provide newly commissioned JAGC Reserve officers with a basic understanding of the military legal system. This course, or its equivalent, plus completion of 25% of the judge advocate officer career course is required for promotion to captain.

THE JUDGE ADVOCATE OFFICER CAREER EXTENSION COURSE (5-18-E23).

This course is the extension equivalent of the nine-month resident Advanced Course. It is designed to educationally qualify career JAGC Reserve officers to perform all judge advocate functions. To enroll in the course, an applicant must be a commissioned officer of the armed forces whose assignment, actual or anticipated, is to the Judge Advocate General's Corps or his service's equivalent. In addition, the applicant must have actual, constructive or equivalent credit for the Judge Advocate Basic Indoctrination Extension Course. Students enrolled in this course must complete a minimum of 120 credit hours each enrollment year. At least 40 of the 120 required annual credit hours must be completed by extension subcourses. The remaining 80 credit hours may be earned either by completing extension subcourses or attending one of the equivalent short resident courses offered by The Judge Advocate General's School. The Judge Advocate Officer Career Extension Course is interchangeable with the USAR School Branch Officer Advanced Course which began operation in the USAR schools on 1 September 1968. Successful completion of 25% of the career course is required for promotion to captain and completion of the entire course is required for promotion to major.

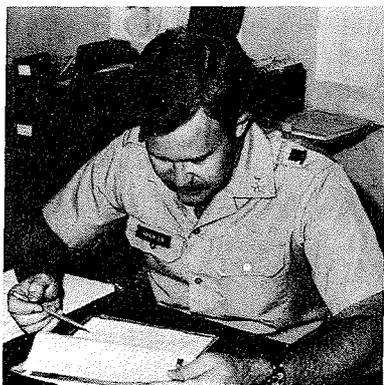

COMMAND AND GENERAL STAFF COURSES.

Effective 9 June 1969, completion of an appropriate Command and General Staff College course became a prerequisite for promotion to colonel. Completion of the entire Judge Advocate Reserve Components General Staff Course now satisfies the educational requirement for promotion to the grades of lieutenant colonel, colonel, and brigadier general for Reserve JAGC officers. The Judge Advocate Reserve Components General Staff Course is a resident-nonresident course designed to provide training in those general staff subjects of special interest to judge advocates. The course consists of one two-week resident phase which this year is being conducted by USAR Schools at Eastern Michigan University, Fort Ritchie, Maryland, and the University of Nevada, and a 73 credit hour nonresident phase. The Reserve Affairs Department administers the nonresident phase. Due to changes in the Fort Leavenworth curriculum, the General Staff Course is being re-written for the fiscal year 1973 program. Field grade JAGC officers who have completed a JAGC career course are eligible to take the course. Although the Judge Advocate Reserve Components General Staff Course will fulfill the educational prerequisite for promotion to the grades of lieutenant colonel, colonel, and brigadier general, it is stressed that completion of the full Command and General Staff College Course will increase an officer's competitiveness when being considered for promotion. All Reserve JAGC officers are urged to complete a Command and General Staff College Course if possible.

SPECIALIZATION EXTENSION COURSES.

These courses are available to Reserve component judge advocate officers who have completed a judge advocate officer career course. These courses provide in-depth study of selected subjects in international law, military justice, military affairs, and procurement law. Special Extension Courses provide training in military-legal and related subjects to certain military personnel who are not judge advocate officers.

CPT JOHN W. BRICKLER
*Chief, Nonresident Training
Division*

MILITARY LAW FOR COMMANDERS AND STAFF OFFICERS.

This course is designed for officers who are not members of the Judge Advocate General's Corps but who, by virtue of their duties, require some knowledge of military law and procedure.

Miscellaneous enrollments are also available to enable all active duty and Reserve component military personnel and civilian employees of the Federal Government, whose actual or prospective duties require knowledge of the subject matter, to complete extension subcourses offered by the School, even though they may not meet the eligibility requirements of any of the above-mentioned courses.

Representative breakdown of extension course enrollments was as follows:

The department also administers the following special training projects for JAGC reserve officers who have completed the Judge Advocate Officer Career Course or its equivalent:

MILITARY-LEGAL THESIS PROGRAM.

This program enables Reservists to write scholarly articles on military-legal subjects, for which retirement points are awarded. The purpose of the program is to encourage the preparation and publication of scholarly articles or treatises on military jurisprudence.

codes, treatises, cases, and other civilian or military-legal materials from a foreign language into English or vice versa.

In keeping with the School's continuing efforts to upgrade Reserve training, the School has completed, and delivered to the field, 123 hours of filmed lectures for use by Reserve judge advocates. The lectures include 15 hours of military affairs, 15 hours of claims, 30 hours of procurement law, 30 hours of international law, 30 hours of military justice and 3 hours on the legal aspects of civil disturbances. The Reserve Affairs Department distributed instructor and student packets of supplementary material designed to provide in-depth study in every area of military law. These packets accompany almost every hour of filmed instruction. The department maintains a copy of each film and distributes them for Active Army and Reserve use when the film cannot be obtained from the Executive for Reserve Affairs in the Army area. The department also administers the program whereby officers who view the films and participate fully in the supplementary training can be awarded equivalent credit for appropriate portions of the Judge Advocate Officer Career Extension Course. Equivalent credit is not granted unless an officer is enrolled in the Judge Advocate Officer Career Extension Course, and not until completion of an entire series, i.e., international law, military justice.

PARAPROFESSIONAL TRAINING

The Legal Paraprofessional. The implementation of the Military Justice Act of 1968 and the Pilot Legal Assistance Program have placed extraordinary demands on the time of the Army lawyer. A partial answer to these demands is the development of military legal paraprofessionals. During the second week of February, the Civil Law Division conducted the first Legal Paraprofessional Course in legal assistance. The course, attended by 21 secretaries and enlisted men from Army and Coast Guard judge advocate offices, is the first step in the formal development of legal paraprofessionalism in the Army. Presently under development by the Criminal Law Division at the School is a criminal law paraprofessional course designed to prepare legal lay assistants in the duties and administration of the military justice division of installation judge advocate offices. It is planned that future instruction in these resident courses will include:

PARAPROFESSIONAL COURSE—CIVIL LAW—1 week.

Legal research and instruction in legal assistance to include interview techniques, recognition of non-legal problems, preliminary drafting of routine legal documents, and other substantive legal matters.

PARAPROFESSIONAL COURSE—CRIMINAL LAW—1 week.

An overview of the entire military justice system, disposition of charges, interview of witnesses, preparation of vouchers, subpoenas, depositions and similar documents, administrative review of Article 15 punishments, and other substantive legal matters.

Prerequisites (both courses):

Military personnel in the grade E-5 or E-6 and civilian personnel in the grade of GS-6 actually assigned to duties in a Judge Advocate office or activity.

Legal Office Management. The School presently offers two resident courses in legal office management to warrant officers and senior legal clerks:

WARRANT OFFICER COURSE (7A-713A)—2 weeks.

Review and discussion of the legal administrative technician's role as office manager of a judge advocate office or activity with particular emphasis on effective management of personnel, equipment, work flow, and fiscal resources.

SENIOR LEGAL CLERK COURSE (512-71D50)—1 week.

Instruction and review in law office administration with special emphasis on the senior legal clerk's responsibilities in military justice and claims administration and records management.

Noncommissioned Officer Education System. On 14 June 1972, the Commanding General of United States Continental Army Command approved an agreement between the Commandant of The Adjutant General's School and the Commandant of The Judge Advocate General's School for the training of enlisted personnel under the new NCOES. This agreement provides that Basic and Advanced NCOES courses for MOS 71D (Legal Clerk) and MOS 71E (Court Reporter) will be conducted through military training presented consecutively at the Adjutant General's School and The Judge Advocate General's School.

General military and administrative training for 71D NCOES Advanced and Basic Courses will be developed and conducted at the AG School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. MOS functional training for 71D/E NCOES Advanced Courses will be developed and conducted by the JAG School at Charlottesville, Virginia.

The 71D/E NCOES Basic instructional track will be a part of the multi-track, multi-phase AG School NCOES Basic Course. The 71D/E students will track with MOS 71L (Administrative Specialist) students during general military and administrative training and receive MOS 71D/E functional training in a separate track conducted by USAAGS. This basic training may, depending on the number of students, include the use of on-the-job training, in the SJA office or at other suitable facilities at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

Non-Resident Courses. In addition to resident offerings for the paraprofessional, the School offers several Special Extension Courses which provide training in military-legal and related subjects:

LEGAL ADMINISTRATIVE TECHNICIAN COURSE (MOS 713A) [243 credit hours].

Course offerings include instruction in management, administration, investigation of claims, military affairs, and military justice.

Prerequisites: Personnel holding or preparing for the military occupational specialty of Legal Administrative Technician.

BRANCH SENIOR NCO COURSE [169 credit hours].

Course offerings include instruction in Department of Defense operations, operations of the Army at Division level, command and staff procedures, and civil affairs.

RESERVE CAREER MANAGEMENT

To provide prompt and accurate career advice to Reserve judge advocates, the Career Management Division maintains detailed records for each Reservist assigned to the Judge Advocate General's Corps. At the present time separate detailed personnel files and locator cards are maintained on each of approximately 1,800 judge advocate Reservists. An additional file is maintained for each Reservist, officer and enlisted, and each active duty enrollee in the extension course program. These files include all information pertinent to the enrollee's military education. The files are maintained throughout the individual's extension course enrollment and for a period of six years thereafter. In the period 1970-1971 approximately 5,100 such files were maintained by the Career Management Division.

LTC KEITH A. WAGNER
Director, Reserve Affairs Department

The Career Management Division engages in a constant flow of correspondence with individual Reservists concerning their career development. In addition, every effort is made to contact Reserve officers on a personal basis whenever possible. Each judge advocate Reservist attending a resident short course at the School may request an interview by a member of the division. Such interviews often alert Reservists to important career matters and contribute to the orderly development of their Reserve career.

During the past year, officers from the division conducted personal interviews with JAGC Reserve officers in attendance at the active duty training held at the School. Personal interviews also conducted when officers of the department make staff liaison and inspection trips to JAG detachments and USAR schools throughout the year.

Effective March 1970 the following reserve affairs functions of The Judge Advocate General, Department of the Army, were transferred from the Assistant for Reserve Affairs, OTJAG, DA, to the Commandant, The Judge Advocate General's School:

(1) Approval of appointments and transfers of Reserve Component JAGC officers without concurrent call to active duty.

(2) Management of the OTJAG, DA, mobilization designee program which includes processing assignment and AT orders for mobilization designees to OTJAG, The Judge Advocate General's School, the U. S. Army Judiciary, and the U. S. Army Claims Service.

(3) Awards of constructive credit under the provisions of paragraph 6b, AR 135-316.

MAJ THOMAS M. RANKIN
Chief, Career Management Division

The Commandant, The Judge Advocate General's School, has further delegated these functions to the Reserve Affairs Department. During Fiscal Year 1972, the Reserve Affairs Department acted upon 106 applications for initial appointment, 55 applications for branch transfer, and 43 requests for federal recognition. Applications of 35 mobilization designation assignments were processed and 196 actions for annual training of mobilization designees were handled. About 250 requests for constructive credit were favorably considered.

The second edition of the Judge Advocate Reserve Components Directory was published 1 May 1972. This directory lists the names, addresses, grades, and occupations of all National Guard and USAR judge advocate officers in an active status. The directory was distributed to each Reserve Component judge advocate in an active status and to most active Army judge advocate offices by the Reserve Affairs Department.

RESERVE TRAINING PROGRAM

The training program for Reservists was significantly revised during Fiscal Year 1972. Provision has been made for the Reserve JAG Detachments to alternate annual active duty training periods between special continuing legal education programs in their field of expertise at the School and on-the-job training at military installations around the country.

During the summer of 1972, a training program for War Crimes Teams totaling over 150 men and for the Procurement Teams totaling over 250 Reservists was conducted at Charlottesville rather than at Hattiesburg, Mississippi. As in the past a USAR

BG UPP, MG FULLER, and
BG BUTT

School, the 1050th USAR School, West Hartford, Connecticut, supported the training of the War Crimes Teams; training for the Procurement Teams was supported by the 1150th USAR School, Fort Hamilton, New York. The instruction given by the Procurement Law Division and the International and Comparative Law Division of The Judge Advocate General's School to officers and by the 1050th USAR School to enlisted personnel was devoted to particular areas of legal expertise and administrative skills. As a practical exercise, each JAG Detachment was provided with its own office and was required to solve problems within its own legal field.

An extensive program of on-the-job training for JAG Detachments not receiving instruction at the School began in May 1972. One hundred and fifty-four JAG Detachments were placed on over thirty military installations during the summer. This required matching the capabilities of the Detachments with the requirements of the various judge advocate offices on the military installations.

Most significant in the Reserve activities has been utilization of Reservists to replace or to complement active duty judge advocates at various installations, particularly in the legal assistance field.

BG MONTGOMERY

Every Saturday, Reservists take over the judge advocate responsibilities at Fort MacArthur, California. Reserve officers from the 78th JAG Detachment perform work in the fields of Legal Assistance, Claims, and Administrative Law. A continuing review of the Detachment's efforts will determine possible application of such a program to other installations. Presently, Reservists are being utilized for legal assistance and claims matters at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Fort Meade, Maryland, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and Fort Jackson, South Carolina. In addition, at many installations, Reservists have acted as assistant trial and assistant defense counsel in special courts-martial, reviewed procurement matters, visited stockades, and attended seminars taught by military judges.

Finally, JAGC Reserve officers are teaching military justice to ROTC students at over 100 universities throughout the United States.

INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS

Instructional texts and training materials were reviewed and significantly revised during Fiscal Year 1972.

A new text for instructors of military law to ROTC students, ROTCM 145-85, Fundamentals of Military Law, has been prepared in draft form for Department of the Army staff review.

The Criminal Law Division has updated and produced new school texts in the areas of evidence and affirmative defenses. In addition, the Criminal Law Division prepared a deskbook containing all instructional material for the Basic Class criminal law instruction. Two new procurement law publications, a school text, and a course outline, and a civil law school text dealing with military assistance to civil authorities have been added to the School's instructional library.

The advent of the Senior Officer's Legal Orientation (SOLO) Course produced two volumes in civil law and two in criminal law to assist senior commanders in the administration of military justice and in civil law areas, including the law of installation management, personnel actions, procurement litigation and legal assistance.

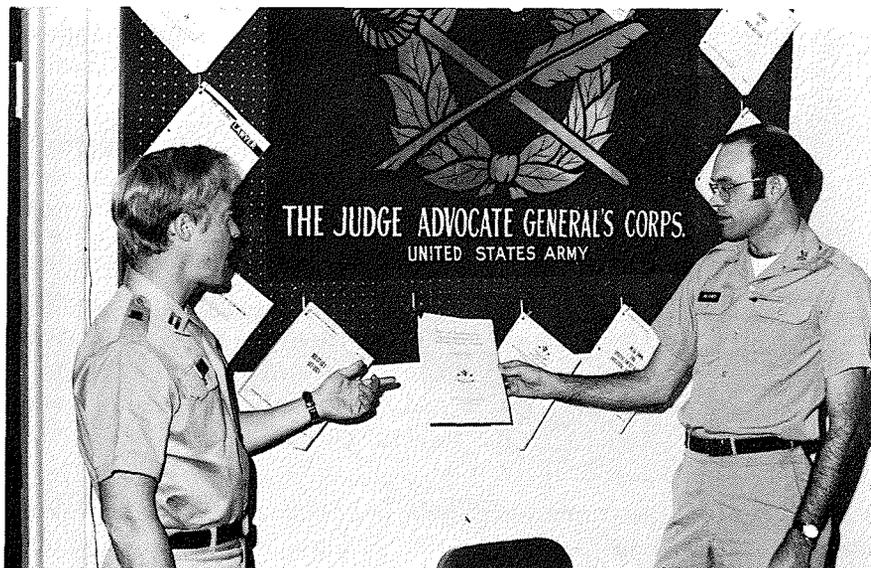

MAJ JAMES A. ENDICOTT, JR.
Director, Plans and Publications Department

A number of DA Pamphlets were prepared at the School during the year. Two new DA Pamphlets prepared at the School, The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act (formerly a school text) and Self Instruction Text Law of War have been added to the School's wealth of instructional material. Several new DA Pamphlets resulted from the efforts of the "Think Tank" project of the 20th Advanced Class, "Crisis in Credibility," including Desk Book for Special Court-Martial Convening Authorities (DA Pam 27-18), Legal Guide for Commanders (DA Pam 27-19), Lessons in Military Law (DA Pam 27-20) and a revision of Staff Judge Advocate Handbook (DA Pam 27-5) were all published during Fiscal Year 1972. The Legal Clerk's Handbook (DA Pam 27-16) was revised during the year to eliminate and update former material. A new chapter, entitled "Other Actions of Importance to Legal Clerks," has been added to include information regarding the Army Board for Correction of Military Records, flag control procedures, and administrative reductions.

In addition, a new film entitled "The Army Reports—The Military Judge," which was filmed in large part at the School featuring members of the Staff and Faculty, has supplemented the School's training film library.

Extension course material received added attention and revision during Fiscal Year 1972. The Branch Officer Basic Course was reviewed by the Criminal Law and International and Comparative Law Division and subsequently the revised edition was distributed in FY 72. The Procurement Law extension courses are presently being reviewed and prepared for distribution. During Fiscal Year 1973 the Criminal, Civil and International and Comparative Law extension courses will receive primary concentration.

PERIODICALS

The Military Law Review, a law quarterly identical in format to the leading civilian legal journals, is distributed to all judge advocates in the Active Army and the Ready Reserve. In addition, the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, sells copies and subscriptions to all interested civilian agencies and individuals.

The Law Review contains lead articles, comments, and notes of interest to military law practitioners. Theses written by students of the Judge Advocate Advanced Course are a primary source of articles. Comments, notes, and articles from judge advocates in all three armed services, foreign military and civilian lawyers, members of the Staff and Faculty, law school professors, reserve judge advocates and civilian attorneys are also published. During Fiscal Year 1972, Volumes 53-56 were printed. Instituted during this fiscal year was a series of comments on historic courts-martial to be continued in future volumes of the Law Review.

The Catalog of Advanced Class Theses was revised by the Publications Division and distributed to staff judge advocate offices and law school libraries during fiscal year 1972. A supplement to the Catalog is in the process of compilation and will be distributed during FY 1973.

The Judge Advocate Legal Service (JALS) is responsible for rapid dissemination of the latest military law and items of interest to judge advocates around the world. JALS is printed bi-weekly in Charlottesville, Virginia, and distributed in over 7,600 copies to all three armed services. JALS digests all cases decided by the United States Court of Military Appeals, most published Court of Military Review decisions, Federal Court decisions affecting the armed services and actions by The Judge Advocate General under Article 69, Uniform Code of Military Justice. JALS also serves to disseminate current information applicable to judge advocate reserve components.

CPT BUESCHER Prepares
The Army Lawyer

The Army Lawyer, a “how-to-do-it” type journal which provides practical and timely information to practicing Army lawyers, began publication on 1 August 1971. This monthly periodical incorporates claims, personnel and legal assistance information previously found in other publications.

The Manual for Courts-Martial Annotation, Second Edition (1972), a significant research tool on military law, was published in an updated version during Fiscal Year 1972 as DA Pamphlet 27-13.

The Annotation contains case citations, citation of appropriate regulations and pamphlets, and is cross-indexed to the Military Judges Guide. To facilitate research, the Annotation is interleaved on a chapter-by-chapter basis with the Manual.

RESEARCH

A number of legal research articles were prepared and published by members of the Staff and Faculty in both bar association and military publications. A total of seventeen legal assistance articles prepared by Staff and Faculty personnel appeared in The Army Times. A large number of other Army Times legal assistance articles were prepared by members of classes at the School. These articles covered a wide scope of subject matter, ranging from an article on the legitimacy of children to a series concerned with enforcement of individual civil rights.

The Staff and Faculty contributed eight articles to the Military Law Review and three articles to The Army Lawyer. The Federal Bar Journal published two articles written by members of the Staff and Faculty during Fiscal Year 1972. In addition, research is being conducted with the purpose of compiling a history of the Judge Advocate General's Corps to be published in conjunction with the two-hundredth anniversary of the Corps in 1975.

A great deal of the research done at the School is carried on by students in the Advanced and Basic Classes who prepare theses, papers, and research problems for their respective courses. In addition, members of the Staff and Faculty are often requested to research legal problems for judge advocates in the field who do not have research facilities in as much depth as those available to the School.

LIBRARY AND MILITARY LEGAL CENTER

The School generally furnishes each student with the basic textbooks and other classroom materials which he will need during a course. However, when additional references and research facilities are required, students attending The Judge Advocate General's School are encouraged to utilize the School Library, the Law Library of the University of Virginia, and Alderman Library, the general library of the University.

The Judge Advocate General's School Library contains approximately 20,000 volumes and is oriented toward military law. The library contains a complete set of all Army regulations, most federal legal materials, and a complete military justice library. During FY 1972, many historical military legal items and current books on the military law were added to the School's Military Legal Center, one of the most extensive collections on military law, past and present, in existence. Of particular interest, in June 1972 the School was given the personal papers of Major General Thomas H. Green, Judge Advocate in Hawaii during the martial law period from 1941 to 1943 and Judge Advocate General from 1945 to 1949.

MRS. PERSINGER and MRS. HEBERT, Librarian

The Law Library, in Clark Hall, contains over 200,000 volumes. It has an extensive collection of published reports of the American federal and state courts, the reports of the courts of the United Kingdom, treaties, digests, encyclopedias, indices and citator services. It also contains the statutes of the United States, of the several states, and of Great Britain. The Library receives every current legal periodical of general interest printed in the English language. The academic activities of The Judge Advocate General's School, particularly the writing of theses by the members of the Advanced Class, require frequent recourse to the Law Library. The use of the Library is subject to regulations, copies of which are available at the circulation desk.

Alderman Library has about 2,000,000 volumes and a particularly fine collection of official Government publications. It has been designated by the United States Government as a depository for public documents.

DIVISION V
SPECIAL ACTIVITIES
SECTION 21
PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

American Bar Association. During Fiscal Year 1972 the School continued its participation in and liaison with the American Bar Association. In July 1971, four representatives from the School attended the Annual Meeting in New York City and two individuals participated in the Section on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar. Three representatives from the School attended the ABA Mid-year meeting in New Orleans in February, one of whom was active with the Association of Continuing Legal Education Administrators.

A representative from the School was selected as Chairman of the Military Service Lawyers Committee of the Young Lawyers Section of the ABA for 1971-72. At the Spring Meeting of the Executive Council of the Young Lawyers Section, another representative from the School was elected District Representative of District 15 (Armed Forces) and named Co-chairman for 1972-1973 of the Military Service Lawyers Committee.

The Commandant has been appointed to the Advisory Committee of the Standing Committee on Legal Assistance to Servicemen and in that capacity hosted a meeting of the Committee at the School in May 1972. At that meeting, reports from each of the Armed Services were received on the Pilot Legal Assistance Program and its operation during the past year and recommendations on the continuation of the program were made. Several representatives from the School participated in the analysis and discussion.

The Plans Division serves as the liaison office with the ABA within the School. Part of these duties includes the recruitment of new members from the Basic Classes. This activity is performed by Division personnel.

Federal Bar Association. The School continued in its role of leadership of the Charlottesville Chapter, Federal Bar Association, in Fiscal Year 1972. The School was represented at the September meeting of the Federal Bar Association in New Orleans and the Executive Council meeting in May by the Charlottesville Chapter President, who is a member of the Staff and Faculty at the School. In December, representatives from the School attended a luncheon in Washington, D. C., sponsored by the FBA honoring the two newest members of the United States Supreme Court, Justices Powell and Rehnquist.

The Commandant addressed the Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio, Chapters of the FBA in March on the subject "The Army Lawyer in the 1970's." Additionally, Colonel Douglass and Captain Workman published an article entitled "Educational Program for the Service Lawyer" in the Federal Bar Journal.

The membership drive planned for Fiscal Year 1972 has generated several additional members for the Chapter. The drive will be continued during Fiscal Year 1973. The Plans Division operates the Charlottesville Chapter business office and provides administrative support and liaison with the FBA for the School.

Association of American Law Schools. During Fiscal Year 1972 the Commandant and the Director of the Academic Department attended the December meeting of the Association of American Law Schools in Chicago in order to obtain current information on legal instruction and to maintain liaison with law schools throughout the nation.

Association of the United States Army. The Thomas Jefferson Chapter AUSA, completed its first full year of operation during Fiscal Year 1972. During the year, the Chapter sponsored several functions in the Charlottesville area. In September the Chapter sponsored its Fall Luncheon featuring Congressman J. William Whitehurst (Rep., Va.) as guest speaker. In March, the Chapter's Annual Gala Banquet was held, featuring Senator Strom Thurmond (Rep., S. C.) as the guest speaker and the Commandant as toastmaster. In April the Chapter held its Spring Luncheon honoring the Golden Knights (the U. S. Army Parachute Team), Miss Virginia 1972, and the 1972 Dogwood Festival Queen and Princesses.

JAGC Placement Service. The Plans Division is the action agency for the Placement Service at the School during the Fiscal Year.

The service is primarily aimed at retiring Regular Army JAGC officers, with some placement of junior officers throughout the Corps. During the year, this Service has provided placement opportunities for approximately 30 retiring officers and five junior officers.

Division personnel have taken an active part in developing the program by attending conferences on law placement in Washington, D. C. and Denver, Colorado, as well as bringing the Service to the attention of members of the Corps. In addition, the School joined the National Association for Law Placement, a fledgling organization of employers and law schools, during the year.

JAGC Recruiting. During the year, several members of the Staff and Faculty have taken trips to various law schools throughout the country in an effort to recruit senior law students for the JAG Corps. In addition, the Plans Division receives numerous inquiries concerning admission into the Corps. Each letter of inquiry is answered by the Division Chief. Packets containing information on admission requirements are dispersed as requested. Division personnel are called upon to counsel and advise individuals from the Charlottesville area and the University of Virginia who are seeking admission to the Corps and come to the School for such information. In addition, the Division is responsible for the preparation and distribution of packets containing information on the JAG Corps to ROTC units throughout the country.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The Alumni Association continued to grow during the fiscal year with approximately 1975 members on 30 June 1972, an increase of approximately 600 new members during the year. The Association provides academic awards for Basic and Advanced Classes, maintains contact with the allied officers who have attended the School and gives a plaque and a cash award to the winner of the Annual Professional Writing Award. During Fiscal Year 1972 four issues of the Alumni Newsletter were published which included news of events and conferences at the School, a calendar of courses offered at the School and personal information on members of the Association. The activities of the Association were financed by annual dues of one dollar for each member and contributions from interested members. During Fiscal Year 1973, however, the dues will be increased to two dollars because of increased publication costs. The Annual Report is distributed by the Alumni Association to all of its members each year.

The Association Endowment Program grew considerably during the fiscal year. Among presentations to the School were a lectern clock for the Advanced Classroom; the Kenneth J. Hodson Chairs of Criminal Law; an electric clock for the Cramer Room; a framed picture of The Judge Advocate General; plaques from the Naval and Marine Corps Judge Advocates who have attended the Advanced Class; and, with financial assistance from the Judge Advocates Association, the Edward H. Young Chairs of Military Legal Education.

One of the Hodson Chairs of Criminal Law was presented to Major General Kenneth J. Hodson on 25 June 1971 and the academic chair was formally established at the School on 1 July 1971. Lieutenant Colonel Hugh R. Overholt, Chief of the Criminal Law Division at the School, became the first occupant of the Chair. The first Kenneth J. Hodson Lecture in Criminal Law, "Manual for Courts-Martial—1984," was presented at the School by General Hodson on 12 April 1972. Ceremonies for establishing the Edward H. Young Chair of Military Legal Education are planned for Fiscal Year 1973.

Coordination and financing of Association activities, as well as editing and writing of the Alumni Newsletter and the Annual Report, are responsibilities of the Plans Division.

PHYSICAL FACILITIES

The Judge Advocate General's School Building, a red brick building of Georgian architecture, was dedicated on 26 September 1956. It contains 46 offices and 10 furnished rooms which are used as living quarters for personnel on temporary duty at the School. In addition, the building houses the School Library, a conference room, a supply room, and a bookstore. An Officers' Open Mess, which contains a snack bar area, a lounge, and an outdoor patio, is located on the fourth floor of the building. Among the offices located in the School building are the Office of the Commandant, Office of the School Secretary, the Plans and Publications Department, the Reserve Affairs Department, the Academic Department, and the Office of the Combat Developments Command, Judge Advocate Agency. In addition, the School recently converted the second floor hallway to the National Hall of Flags and received flags of almost every state, territory, and the District of Columbia for display there.

a full-time basis. One classroom, designed to accommodate 96 students, is used primarily for the Basic Classes; the other, with a seating capacity of 60, is occupied nine months of the year by the Advanced Class. During the summer months, both are used for short courses. The rooms are available to students year-round in the evening for study purposes.

The new Judge Advocate General's School Building, authorized by the Virginia Legislature and costing an estimated $3,955,750, is scheduled to begin construction in Quarters. Bachelor officers' quarters are available in The Judge Advocate General's School Building. Assignments of rooms may be obtained through the Billeting Officer. Linens, towels and maid service are provided. All rooms are carpeted and air-conditioned, and many have refrigerators and television sets. Wooden furniture is replacing the old institutional metal furniture. During Fiscal Year 1972, the School has named a number of the BOQ rooms for distinguished judge advocates from the Revolutionary War, War of 1812, Civil War, and World War I.

The School has a number of family housing units under government lease to be utilized as government quarters in lieu of BAQ. About half of these units are occupied by student officers of the Advanced Class and their families. The remaining units are occupied by enlisted personnel and company grade officers stationed at the School. The School Secretary and the University Housing Division maintain lists of available apartments and houses in the Charlottesville area.

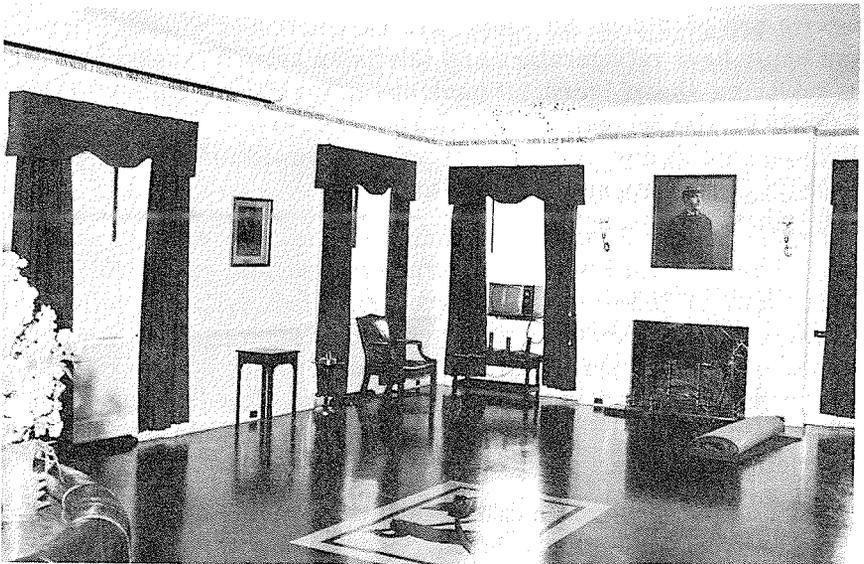

Messing. Government messing facilities are not available at The Judge Advocate General's School. There are a number of dining halls and snack bars available which are operated by the University of Virginia, as well as many convenient commercial restaurants.

Officers' Open Mess. The top floor of The Judge Advocate General's School Building is used by the Officers' Open Mess. The Winthrop Room is furnished with large comfortable chairs and sofas, a color television set, piano, and other accessories.

A snack bar, located on the fourth floor and operated by the Officers' Open Mess personnel, now serves breakfast and lunch to its members. During the evening hours, refreshments and snacks are available.

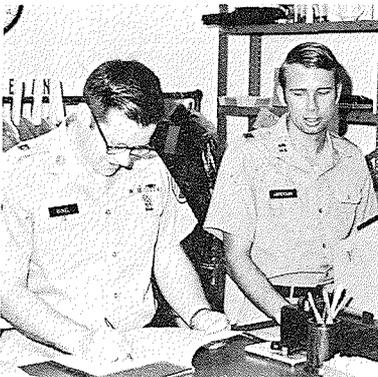

During the year, the Mess sponsors a full program of activities and social events for the benefit of its members including dances, buffets, picnics, class receptions, social hours, and other activities.

The Officers' Open Mess is open daily for the use of all members.

BOOKSTORE

The Bookstore, now located on the first floor of The Judge Advocate General's School, is easily accessible to all patrons. Various personal items, uniform equipment, stationery supplies, cigarettes and tobacco, souvenir items, gifts, and books are available. In Fiscal Year 1972, the Bookstore acquired the services of an experienced bookstore NCO whose expertise has resulted in the streamlining of bookstore operations.

SECTION 27

LOGISTICS

Government storage facilities are not available nor is there a transportation officer assigned to the School. However, the Logistics Office provides necessary assistance and advice in arranging for shipment and/or storage of household goods for military personnel assigned to the School and members of the Advanced and Basic Classes. The Logistics Division provides the School with budget and contracting services for all money expended by the School, including printing requirements. In addition, this office requisitions items of equipment needed to support the operation of the School.

SECTION 28

PERSONNEL AND FINANCE

The Adjutant's Office is responsible for the processing of all incoming and outgoing personnel. Personnel actions and the maintenance of individual records are handled by this office. The office also acts as liaison with the Civilian Personnel Division at the U. S. Army Foreign Science and Technology Center in Charlottesville which is responsible for the School's civilian employees. The Adjutant's Office also operates the School mailroom and the internal distribution system.

Although the School has no finance officer, the Adjutant's Office is available to provide necessary assistance and advice in matters relating to pay and allowances. Close contact is maintained with the servicing Finance and Accounts Offices in Washington and at Fort Lee.

SECTION 29

HEALTH CARE FACILITIES

The Judge Advocate General's School is satellited on Fort Lee, Virginia, where Kenner Army Hospital is located for medical and dental care. Locally, a contract surgeon in the Student Health Center of the University of Virginia provides out-patient services for military personnel. Because of the distance from a U. S. Army hospital, dependents of personnel stationed at The Judge Advocate General's School are entitled to the benefits provided under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS).

Dental care and eye examinations for military personnel assigned to the School are available from any local dentist and eye doctor on an individual contract basis. However, there are no provisions for such care for dependents.

Drugs are generally available from the stocks maintained at the Student Health Center and by means of mail service with the Fort Lee Hospital Pharmacy.

SECTION 30

ATHLETIC FACILITIES

Assigned and attached military personnel and all students are permitted to use all athletic facilities of the University of Virginia, including the tennis courts, crafts shop, swimming pool, and all the indoor facilities at the University's Memorial Gymnasium. Both the School and the Intramural Department of the University have a limited amount of athletic equipment for the use of students and the Staff and Faculty. Lockers may be rented on a limited basis by personnel assigned to the School. Additionally, golf, tennis, bowling, and swimming facilities are also available in the Charlottesville area.

During the school year, the School sponsors a bowling league which provides organized recreation for the Staff and Faculty and the Advanced Class. Tournaments in tennis, handball, squash, and other sports are arranged for School personnel.

SECTION 31

PUBLIC INFORMATION OFFICE

Program. During Fiscal Year 1972, the Plans Division conducted a comprehensive public information program with increased emphasis on obtaining the broadest possible coverage of all events occurring at The Judge Advocate General's School. Radio and television as well as printed news media were effectively utilized. Routine public information activities were continued, including dissemination of command information to School personnel and preparation of press releases concerning the School's faculty and students, maintenance of speech file services, and preparation of biographical sketches.

SECTION 32

LEGAL ASSISTANCE AND CLAIMS

During Fiscal Year 1972, the Plans Division continued to provide legal assistance to armed forces personnel and dependents in the Charlottesville area. Liaison has been established with the local Red Cross and Legal Aid Society to assist the department in their respective fields of expertise. The caseload averages 30 clients per month and consists of the type of problems customarily encountered in legal assistance offices in the field.

The Plans Division is also responsible for processing claims arising from incidents in the Charlottesville area and transit damage for all local military personnel. The School has authority to settle and pay claims up to $1,000.00. Thirty-eight claims were processed in Fiscal Year 1972.

The Legal Assistance and Claims Officer began a series of Legal Assistance and Claims Memorandums during the year to provide military personnel at the School and at other military installations in Charlottesville with current personal information in such areas as income taxation, voting, and consumer protection.

SECTION 33

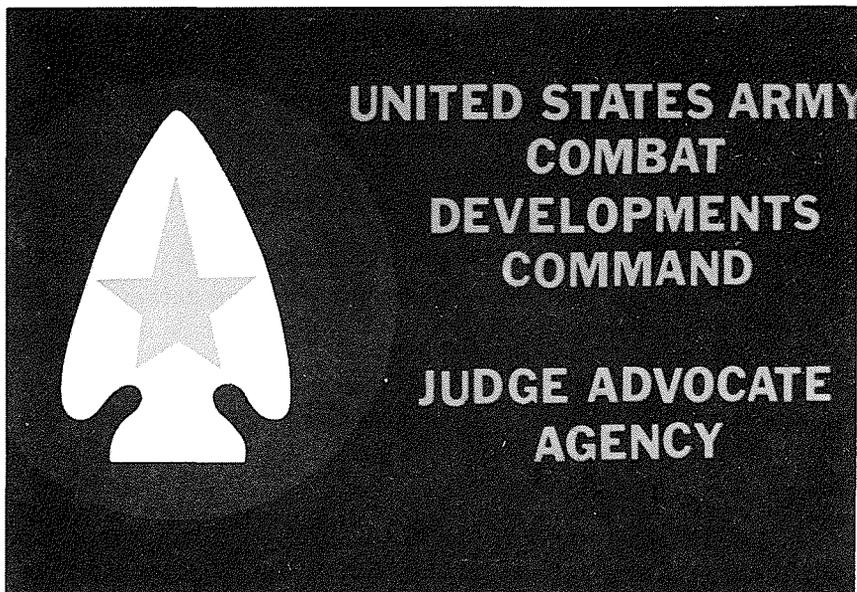

SURVIVORS ASSISTANCE AND NOTIFICATIONS

The Plans and Publications Department is responsible for all notification duties assigned to the School. In Fiscal Year 1972 the department made notifications to the next of kin of deceased active servicemen in two cases.

The Plans Division has the responsibility for providing survivor's assistance to the next of kin of deceased active and retired servicemen. Six survivor assistance cases were administered during Fiscal Year 1972.

DIVISION VII

U. S. ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND JUDGE ADVOCATE AGENCY

The U. S. Army Combat Developments Command Judge Advocate Agency was activated on 15 January 1964 at Charlottesville, Virginia. Located at The Judge Advocate General's School, this Agency assists the U. S. Army Combat Developments Command in the analysis and solution of many legal service problems facing the Army today and in the future. The Combat Developments Command is primarily responsible for planning how the Army should be organized and equipped to best accomplish its field mission. To this end, U. S. Army Combat Developments Command has established various Agencies representing the various branches of the service, i.e., Infantry, Armor, Medical Service, etc., and co-located the Agencies with the branch service school where both the school and Agency can work together to resolve mutual problems. The Judge Advocate Agency is one of seven agencies which are organized under the U. S. Army Combat Developments Commands Personnel and Logistics Systems Group, Fort Lee, Virginia, whose overall development mission is directed toward logistic and administrative support of the Army in the field.

In coordination with The Judge Advocate General's School, the Judge Advocate Agency insures that the Judge Advocate General's Corps fully participates in combat developments from concept to implementation by initiating action to improve legal services and furnishing guidance to the Army in the field. Basically, the Judge Advocate Agency is a "think tank" where concepts and ideas are developed which improve the capability of the Army lawyer to accomplish the JAGC and Army mission. Approved studies of Judge Advocate personnel requirements in TOE units; court reporting systems; and legal clerk requirements result in the publication of Army doctrine in field manuals and modified organization and equipment requirements in Tables of Organization and Equipment. The Judge Advocate Agency also provides legal service input to other CDC elements for their developmental actions; and reviews their output, both for legal accuracy and for adherence to approved judge advocate concepts and policies.

Recently completed actions of this Agency include a court reporting study recommending warrant officer status for the Army's court reporters, civilian stenotype training, and assignment to the U. S. Army Judiciary; the addition of one legal clerk to each battalion, four legal clerks to each division headquarters Staff Judge Advocate office, and one legal clerk for each 4000 troops to the Staff Judge Advocate office of each general court-martial jurisdiction; and revision of TOE 27-500, The Judge Advocate General's Service Organization, which resulted in a streamlining of the tactical vehicle requirement resulting in the saving of $1,390,000 to the Army. In addition, the Agency's study of the impact of the Military Justice Act of 1968 on JAG personnel requirements resulted in a recommendation that the traditional five divisional judge advocate personnel be increased to 15 and that additional JAG officers be assigned to other headquarters on the basis of one JAG per 1700 troops.

The Judge Advocate Agency is currently working on a study of JAG personnel requirements for TOE units, which will examine Judicial Support Activities, Area Legal Centers, Paralegal and Investigative Personnel, and other related personnel problems. Another of the Agency's current studies is the study of justice in the modern Army. This study seeks to evaluate the Uniform Code of Military Justice and analyze the various means for meeting military justice field requirements. Three field manuals are also included among the Agency's current actions. FM 27-1 delineates some of the legal problems facing the military commander and then discusses the Judge Advocate legal services available to the commander which may avoid or resolve these problems; FM 27-2 is designed to implement in the form of doctrine the procedures applicable to Staff Judge Advocate office operations; and FM 27-4 provides guidance for the organization, assignment, employment, and method of operations of the legal support teams in the Judge Advocate General's Service Organization. In addition, the Judge Advocate Agency has undertaken to meet the field requirement for court reporting equipment by examining the various electronic court reporting equipment available from industry to insure expeditious approval of the best machine for TOE development.

Actions planned for the future include a study of the feasibility of automated legal research; publication of field manuals on court reporter operations, legal clerk operations, and organization of a Judge Advocate section; and examination of the career patterns of
